Tribal Council approves lodge, store investments

By Dean Rhodes
Smoke Signals editor

Tribal Council approved on Wednesday, Feb. 5, almost $16 million in loans and equity investments that combined will remodel Spirit Mountain Lodge and the Grand Ronde convenience store located just east of Spirit Mountain Casino on Salmon River Highway.

Tribal Council OK'd a $15.5 million loan from the Tribe's line of credit to Spirit Mountain Gaming Inc. that will fund construction for the first phase of lodge interior remodeling.

The lodge's interior remodel will include adding more high-demand suites, updating older lodge rooms, and redesigning and updating the entrance way and Hall of Legends connecting the lodge to Spirit Mountain Casino. Tribal Council approved $1.1 million to fund the remodel's design phase in March 2018.

During the Tuesday, Feb. 5, Legislative Action Committee meeting, Tribal Council members Jack Giffen Jr., Kathleen George and Steve Bobb Sr. supported the lodge remodel, pointing out that with gaming and hotel competition now in Clark County, Wash., that Spirit Mountain Casino and Lodge must remain fresh and up-to-date to continue attracting guests.

"This is a necessary, strategic investment," George said.

Community water supply is plentiful for future growth

Regarding the Grand Ronde Tribe's Strategic Plan-stated goal to "attract new Tribal members, diversify and grow the population, and promote a healthier, sustainable community," one thing it doesn't need to fret about is the most elemental commodity – water.

Tribal lands are located within the boundaries of the Grand Ronde Community Water Association, where there's plenty of water, and water rights, to fulfill the needs of current and future population growth into the foreseeable future.

The association, incorporated in 1973, has water rights to more than 691 gallons per minute – approximately 363 million gallons a year – and is currently using 225 to 500 gallons per minute depending on seasonable demand.

Bryan Mercier takes reins as BIA's regional director

Grand Ronde Tribal member works way up from Summer Youth Crew

He merely walked across the courtyard from the BPA offices to the BIA offices.

Although Mercier still drives to the same building he has for the past 10 years, the job he does now is very different. While at the BPA, he served as division director of Fish and Wildlife. Now, Mercier is the Bureau of Indian Affairs' regional director, the senior most official overseeing all Northwest BIA functions ranging from staffing to transportation.

"We're a microcosm of federal government services," he said. "I was happy with my former job, but this has been a great opportunity to help Indian Country."

Letters

Dear Tribal members:
I am writing this letter as a “shoutout” to the amazing health care facilities, services and staff and what we witnessed.
It’s easy to take the benefits we have available to us for granted and not truly appreciate what we have. We recently lost our dear, sweet Gladys Bolton, “Sis” to everyone in her family and staff at Cougar Lodge, but also a sweet and loving partner to my father, Herman Hudson, “Junior” to many.
My husband George and I, my son Kirk Delaurenti and his love Diana Traverso witnessed something that we are still talking about today.
Not only was everyone there beyond friendly, but there really is no true way to describe how everyone opened their hearts and tried to make everyone comfortable and comforted through the process of her last days.
There was constantly food to eat, coffee and water to drink, and kind hearts from everyone there to listen and comfort and advise on what the final process would be. The facility is so clean, welcoming and open to the ability to mingle with others in a “feels like home” environment. All we could say to each other was, “Can you believe how great this place is?” over and over.
Special thanks to Peggy Shaver, LPN Administrator; Susan Joubert, RN Case manager; and Valentina Vittori-McKinley, RN, Hospice Nurse Case manager, Serenity Hospice. They were open to my contacting them anytime and made it easy to speak with them and be comforted by them.
Special thanks to all of the wonderful ladies who are the around-the-clock caregivers for their unbelievable kindness, attention to their jobs and the people in their care, but also the families and loved ones of their residents. They are spectacular: Casandra Blakely, Joanna Davidson, Alyssa Garcia, Ardy Hoffer-Hallicola, Anna Huston, Stephanie King, Brianna Leno, Pearl Metzker, Carmen Parren, Brandi Valencia, Beverly Walsh and Ginger Whitman. You are all rock stars in our eyes!!

Tribe schedules amendment educational meetings

The two remaining educational sessions regarding the March 22 election to possibly fix the split-sibling issue have been rescheduled.
The sessions will be held at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 20, at the Tribal Community Center in Grand Ronde, 9615 Grand Ronde Road, and at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 13, at the Lane Community College Longhouse, 4000 E. 30th Ave., Eugene. Dinner will be provided at both sessions.
Following sessions held in Grand Ronde and Portland, the Tribe canceled the third and fourth educational sessions after the partial federal government shutdown forced postponement of the election from Feb. 25 to March 22.
Ballots will be mailed on March 1 and must be received by Friday, March 22, in this election, which is being run by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Tribal members have until Friday, Feb. 22, to register to vote. However, since registrations must be sent to New Mexico, Tribal members are encouraged to mail to their forms early enough to arrive on time. ■

MARRIAGES IN TRIBAL COURT
Tribal Court is now issuing marriage licenses and is able to perform marriage ceremonies for a filing fee of $40.
For questions regarding scheduling, contact the Tribal Court at 503-879-2303. ■

Correction — Former Tribal Librarian Marion Mercier’s granddaughter was misidentified in a Feb. 1 article. Her name is Ava Fagundes. Smoke Signals regrets the error.

Tribal Office Closures

Tribal offices will be closed on Monday, Feb. 18, in observance of Tribal Chiefs’ Day.

Longtime Tribal Security employee charged with sexual abuse in Salem

By Dean Rhodes
Smoke Signals editor

SALEM — Longtime Tribal Security employee Juan Jose Sifuentez, 54, was arrested by the Salem Police Department on Thursday, Feb. 7, and charged with two counts of first-degree sexual abuse.

Sifuentez works for the Tribe as Security Supervisor in the Engineering & Public Works Department. His current employment status is unknown.

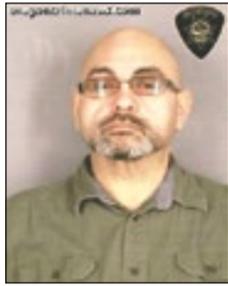

“The Tribe does not comment on personnel issues,” said Deputy Press Secretary Sara Thompson on Tuesday, Feb. 12.

Sifuentez is being held in the Marion County Correctional Facility on $100,000 bail. His first court appearance occurred on Tuesday, Feb. 12, in Marion County Circuit Court and he is scheduled to enter a plea on Tuesday, Feb. 19. He is being represented by Salem attorney Martin Habekost.

Sifuentez has worked for the Grand Ronde Tribe for more than 20 years as a Tribal employee and as an employee of two previous contracted security firms, ProStar and Advance.

According to amended charging documents on file with Marion County Circuit Court, Sifuentez is accused of two incidents of alleged inappropriate touching of a girl younger than 14. The alleged incidents occurred between August 2014 and January 2016.

He also was issued a no-con-

Juan Sifuentez

tact order regarding the victim by Circuit Court Judge Pro Tem Jennifer Gardiner.

According to Oregon law, first-degree sexual abuse occurs if the victim is younger than 14 and is subjected to force or is incapable of consent because he or she is mentally defective or incapacitated or physically helpless. It is a class B felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison with a mandatory minimum of 6 years and 3 months.

“We are disheartened to learn of Mr. Sifuentez’s recent arrest in Marion County,” Thompson added via an e-mail statement. “While we are unaware of the specifics surrounding his arrest, we are monitoring the situation and will cooperate with any investigation if needed.”

Marion County District Attorney Paige Clarkson is prosecuting the case.

In the meantime, Tribal members can contact Lead Security Officer Roel Hernandez regarding Security Department matters at 971-901-1031, ext. 2183, during the day and 503-437-113 after hours. He was named interim Security Supervisor for the foreseeable future on Wednesday, Feb. 13. ■

2014 – Tribal Employment Rights Office Director Greg Azure briefed the general membership on the early stages of implementing the Tribe’s Employment Rights Ordinance at the Feb. 2 General Council meeting held in the Tribal Community Center. TERO became effective on Nov. 27, 2013. “We’re making progress on getting the program established and mainly putting together the pieces that will be the infrastructure for TERO to move forward,” Azure said at the beginning of his presentation. In approving TERO, the Grand Ronde Tribe joined with more than 300 other Native Tribes and Alaska Native villages that have TERO-like ordinances and became the second Oregon Tribe to enact that type of legislation.

Indian Tribe, Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians, Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde and Confederated Tribes of Siletz – banded together and put on a well-attended, two-day celebration held Jan. 30-31 in Salem to celebrate the state’s 150th birthday while symbolically reminding residents that Oregon’s history began long before admission to the Union.

2004 – A traditional naming ceremony was planned for Tribal member Jim Holmes, the first time in more than 95 years that the ceremony was held in Grand Ronde. Warm Springs Medicine Men Wilbur Johnson and Larry Dick were set to oversee the ceremony and traditional medicine dancers and singers also were planning to participate. A meal, giveaways and a medicine dance were all planned for the festivities. Initially, it was not planned as a big event, but excitement about the opportunity to bring a traditional ceremony to the people of Grand Ronde changed that.

1999 – The success of the Grand Ronde Tribe drew recent praise from Bureau of Indian Affairs officials as a potential model for economic development in Indian Country. “They’re a model Tribe for us,” said Portland Area BIA Director Stanley Speaks. “They’ve shown that a Tribe doesn’t need to be in the business for 50 to 100 years to be successful.” The comments followed a presentation on the Tribe’s developmental history that Tribal Council member Mark Mercier gave to BIA superintendents from throughout the Northwest, including Alaska and Idaho.

1994 – Tribal Council Vice Chair Kathryn Harrison was elected to the Native American Rights Fund board of directors. NARF had been in existence for 22 years and represented people and Tribes from almost every state in the union. It was formed to advocate for the rights of Native Americans, especially the poor and disadvantaged, who could not afford their own legal representation. The board of directors includes leaders of Tribes from across the country.

1989 – Tribal Council established the Tribal Burial Fund, which capped the benefit at $3,000 per funeral, and made it eligible to all enrolled Tribal members or those who met the criteria to be enrolled. Headstones were also an option depending on the availability of funds. Tribal Council designated Merle Holmes to administer the fund.

1984 – Several candidates for Tribal Council wrote letters to Smoke Signals detailing why they were the best choice to help lead the Tribe post-Restoration. One of these candidates was Merle Holmes. “I know many of the Grand Ronde Tribal members and you know me, for I have been three times chairman of the Tribal Council. I am asking for your write-in votes.”

Availability of Transit Grant Funds

The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde is providing notice that eligible transportation providers may apply for federal 5310 grant funds ($98,095) allocated to the Tribe for the 2019-2021 biennium by the Oregon Department of Transportation. Projects providing transportation services to seniors and persons with disabilities are eligible for funding including those that also serve the general public. In past years the Tribe has chosen to select internally generated proposals to use these funds in agreements for the transit service to Salem through the Tillamook County Transportation District (TCTD) and to McMinnville through the Yamhill County Transit Area.

Applications submitted for projects serving the Grand Ronde community must be submitted to the Grand Ronde Tribe not later than noon Feb. 18, 2019. Contact Kim Rogers at 503-879-2250, kim.rogers@grandronde.org for more information. The Tribe will also be applying for its ODOT Special Transportation Fund (STF) allocation ($135,400) and suggestions and comments can be provided for use of those funds as well. STF funds have been used for these same routes and agreements and for transit service to Lincoln City through an agreement with TCTD.

The Tribe’s STF Advisory Committee will meet to review 5310 and STF proposals received (internal and external) at 12:15 p.m. Feb. 19, 2019, at the Elders Activity Center (dining hall north end), 48940 Blacktail Drive, Grand Ronde, OR 97347 (which is west of Grand Ronde Road). The public is invited to attend this meeting.

It is expected that the Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, which is an STF Agency, will vote on the recommended uses of these funds at their council meeting on 4 p.m. March 6, 2019. ■

General Council receives Natural Resources update

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

CLACKAMAS — Approximately 50 Tribal members listened to Natural Resources Department Manager Michael Wilson brief General Council on management of Tribal lands during the Sunday, Feb. 3, meeting held at the Monarch Hotel & Convention Center.

Wilson discussed several Natural Resources efforts, such as growing Native plants in a nursery at the Natural Resources offices for restoration projects, harvesting older than industry standard timber and the fire program.

“I enjoy working in natural resources,” Wilson said. “I enjoy working for the Natural Resources Department for the Tribe. We have just an outstanding, great group there. ... We have a lot of really, really dedicated people and a lot of diversity in professions and perspectives, and that plays out really well in taking care of your lands.”

Natural Resources is responsible for managing 12,789 acres of forestland, growing larger than industry-standard timber.

“We’re growing trees on the Reservation that are quite old,” Wilson said. “Our age when we’re harvesting trees is primarily around 70. A lot of them are older than that. This works well for us. We’re growing habitat and there is not as much impact on the land.”

Wilson said Grand Ronde is bucking an industry trend toward smaller logs for smaller sawmills, but that staff has done a good job finding specialty markets for larger logs. Most of the logs go to Hull-Oakes Mill in Bellfountain.

Tribal Reservation logs have been used to build a Bass Pro Shop in Memphis, Tenn., as well as the new Long Timber Brewery in Monroe north of Eugene.

“This beam is going to go out to somebody who really wants and appreciates that wood and the story that is being exposed in the grain of this tree that’s been on our Reservation,” Wilson said while showing a video of a large log being planed at Hull-Oakes. “It’s very, very tough for any in the forest industry now where they’re growing trees that are about 40 years old or such, they can’t grow that. We’ve looked for the specialty market where we can continue our management and continue our style and our philosophy that the Tribal membership wants to see on our Reservation, but also get a good value for them.”

The Natural Resources Department’s Fire Program clears logging sites after harvesting by piling slash and burning the debris instead of using pesticides. That allows for tree planting to occur afterward.

Wilson said the Tribe keeps that program in-house and does not have to contract out for the service.

“It’s always great to have the membership taking care of their own land when we can,” Wilson said.

Wilson fielded nine comments and questions from Tribal members following his presentation.

In response to questions, Wilson said the Tribe primarily plants Douglas fir, western hemlock and red cedar on the Reservation and that the surplus salmon distributed to the membership originates in fish hatcheries and not fish farms.

Before the meeting, about 35 Tribal members attended a 10 a.m. Coffee & Conversation with Dr. Stephen Dow Beckham, who repeated his historical presentation regarding the Willamette Falls fishery that was given in Grand Ronde in early December.

Beckham said his research has established that Willamette Falls was the “exclusive fishery of the antecedent Tribes of Grand Ronde and no other Tribes.”

His 160-page report can be found www.grandronde.org/about/archives/.

Tribal Council Chairwoman Cheryl A. Kennedy said that research by such a renowned Oregon historian as Beckham only goes to prove that the oral histories handed down by Tribal ancestors is “probably 100 percent true.”

Following the presentation, Tribal Council Secretary Jon A. George presented Beckham with a salmon-themed necklace.

Tribal Council also honored Tribal member Bryan Mercier, who was recently named as the regional director for the Bureau of Indian Affairs office in Portland, succeeding Stanley Speaks who retired in 2017. Mercier received a Tribal Pendleton blanket.

Michelle Anderson, Tracy Moreland and Kaalogi Mercier won the $100 door prizes and Keekoa Mercier, Francine Peterson, Joyce Ham, Lisa Archuleta and Perri McDaniel won the $50 door prizes.

The next General Council meeting will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, March 3, in the Tribal Community Center in Grand Ronde.

Jon A. George, Tribal Elder Greg Archuleta, Cultural Resources Specialist Chris Bailey, Cultural Resources Manager David Harrelson, Tribal member Eric Bernando, and Tribal Council members Lisa Leno and Kathleen George performed the cultural drumming and singing to open the meeting.

Natural Resources staff members Fish & Wildlife Program Manager Kelly Dirksen and Biologist Brandon Weems also distributed fish to Tribal members who attended the meeting.

Following lunch, the first of three Community Input meetings was held to solicit Tribal member input on possible advisory votes to be held during the September Tribal Council election. About 25 Tribal members participated in the discussion.

The other two Community Input meetings will be held following the March 3 General Council meeting in Grand Ronde and after the April 7 General Council meeting in Eugene.

Tribal Legislative Information Day set for Feb. 21

By Danielle Frost

Smoke Signals staff writer

SALEM — “Who We Are” is the theme of Tribal Legislative Information Day to be held on Thursday, Feb. 21.

Held annually at the State Capitol in Salem, the event provides an opportunity for Oregon’s nine federally recognized Tribes to highlight who they are and what makes Tribal governments different from the various special interest groups and stakeholders with whom legislators and state agencies mostly interact.

“This is an opportunity for Tribes to educate those in the building, including legislators, lobbyists and constituents,” said Danny Santos, interim executive director of the Legislative Commission on Indian Services. “To this day, most Oregonians are just starting to learn about the nine Tribes.”

Grand Ronde Tribal Council members and Tribal lobbyist Justin Martin usually attend to meet with veteran and newly elected legislators. The Tribe plans to provide light morning refreshments, as it has in the past.

Tribal Council Chairwoman Cheryle A. Kennedy is the longest-serving member of the commission, and in the past has served as event host along with fellow commission members and staff.

Tribal Legislative Information Day has been held for more than 13 years.

“Legislative Day is also an opportunity for both new and veteran legislators to learn more about the nine Tribes and the government-to-government responsibilities,” Santos said. “If the governor is in the building that day, she is also planning to stop by.”

In addition, the event provides an opportunity to visit Tribal informational tables and ask Tribal leaders and staff members questions from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. All nine Tribes usually participate in the event.

Tribal Council Vice Chair Chris Mercier said that the public still knows far less about Tribes than they could.

“Most people are unaware of the Tribal presence in the region,” he said. “They’re not familiar that there are nine Tribes and in what areas. You usually have to associate location with a casino.”

Mercier said he is taking a Tribal law class at Lewis & Clark Law School and that even those students know “surprisingly little” about Tribes.

“Since Tribal people comprise only 2 or 3 percent of people here, it’s important to get the word out about our history with the region and the state of Oregon,” he said.

Mercier’s favorite part of Legislative Information Day is sitting at the Grand Ronde booth.

“When you see people you don’t see often, that is always fun,” he said. “You always get people who genuinely want to know as much as possible. It’s good talking to people who are interested and eager to learn more.”

During past events, some Tribes have displayed and shared thoughts about their baskets, cradleboards, native plants, first foods, youth and Elders programs, partnerships with their neighbors and other governments, fisheries, health programs and governmental organization.

Although the Native American Rehabilitation Association’s serving of mini frybread was cancelled last year due to inclement weather, Santos said he is expecting to see them this year providing Mother Nature cooperates. Other Tribes provide donations for coffee and water. ■

- Provide a process for collection of Ballot Box ballots.
- Allow processing of ballots of voters who are living when they vote but are deceased on Election Day.
- Add an additional transfer of voters address to the mailing service.
- Remove the requirement that new Signature Verification Forms be sent to voters whose forms on file are five years or more old.
- Add definitions for Ballot Box, Election Day and Post Office Box.

For a copy of the proposed Election Ordinance amendments, please contact the Tribal Attorney’s Office at 503-879-4664. The Tribal Council invites comment on the proposed amendments. ## LEASING ORDINANCE OPEN FOR COMMENT

The Tribal Council, in consultation with the Tribal Attorney’s Office and Tribal Lands Department, is considering adoption of a Leasing Ordinance. The proposed Ordinance was given a First Reading at the Feb. 6, 2019, Tribal Council meeting.

The purpose of enacting this Ordinance is for the Tribe to assume authority to process and approve leases on Tribal Trust lands. Under the Leasing Ordinance, the Tribe will assume the authority to process and approve leases on Tribal trust lands, as provided for by the Helping Expedite and Advance Responsible Tribal Homeownership (“HEARTH”) Act of 2012. The Ordinance defines the types and terms of leases and licenses, describes the process for applying for both residential and non-residential leases, sets forth the lease and lease amendment processing requirements, and includes recordation and reporting requirements as well as enforcement provisions. Once enacted by the Tribe, the Ordinance must receive review and approval by the Bureau of Indian Affairs prior to becoming effective.

For a copy of the Leasing Ordinance, please contact the Tribal Attorney’s Office at 503-879-4664. The Tribal Council invites comment on the Ordinance. Please send your comments to the Tribal Attorney’s Office, 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, Oregon 97347 or by e-mail to legal@grandronde.org.

Comments must be received by March 15, 2019. ■ through 2020 to build two new apartment buildings, develop the southwest corner of Grand Ronde and Hebo roads for 24 more Elder housing units and construct a new building for the Information Systems Department; a total of 27 new water connections.

“We have plenty of water rights to grow,” Ekstrom says in the Water Association’s office off Salmon River Highway east of the casino. “We have never run out of water, ever.”

The Grand Ronde Community Water Association started with 250 members who purchased the water right from Long Bell Fiber.

The nonprofit water cooperative was funded with Farm Home Administration loans and engineered by Boatwright Engineering of Salem. It originally had 40 miles of pipeline, two storage tanks and water intake from four springs located approximately six miles south of Highway 18 that are in about 25,000 acres of private timberland.

Today, the Water Association has grown to serving 960 members, has more than 50 miles of pipeline and seven storage tanks that can hold 2.16 million gallons of water. Its $510,000 annual budget pays for Ekstrom and two other full-time employees.

Ekstrom says Water Association engineering estimates put the potential maximum number of connections at 1,900 – almost double the current number.

Where does the water come from?

Casino at about 1,900 feet in elevation. Three new nearby springs are currently undergoing testing before being put online.

Water is gravity fed through three 1,000-gallon pressure reducing tanks as it flows downhill.

From there, the water is stored in two tanks with a combined capacity of 980,000 gallons at Reid, a 150,000-gallon tank at Rowell Creek, two tanks with a combined 489,000-gallon capacity off Fort Hill Road, a 500,000-gallon tank off Salmon Creek Highway directly north of the casino and a 50,000-gallon storage tank off Hebo Road west of the Grand Ronde Road intersection.

The Tribe constructed the Salmon Creek Highway storage tank in 1994 to help ensure fire protection at the casino and an adequate water supply for the community. In 1997, the Tribe installed a 12-inch water main underneath Grand Ronde Road, which Ekstrom says should be sufficient for fire flow and domestic needs for quite some time. An 8-inch line extends from Grand Ronde and Hebo roads north to the Lighthouse Community Center building.

The Water Association’s service area stretches from as far west as the Tillamook County line to as far east as Willamina Creek. It also surrounds the city of Willamina, but does not serve the municipality. Willamina takes its water out of Willamina Creek.

Ekstrom has been working for the Water Association for 26 years after moving to Oregon from the San Francisco Bay area. After a year working for the city of Willamina, he joined the Water Association in 1992 when there were only 400 connections.

Up until 2003, the Water Association also served Spirit Mountain Casino and Lodge, but the inside and outside irrigation demands of that large commercial enterprise put a strain on the water supply. In response, the casino obtained a 55-million gallon annual water right – a former irrigation water right on the Zimbrick property -- to draw water from the South Yamhill River.

The water is treated on site and used by the casino and lodge, Facilities Manager Ron Reibach says. Over the last four years, the casino has used an average of 46 million gallons of its allotted water right.

An intertie exists between the casino and the Water Association to provide the casino with enough water pressure in case of a sudden need, such as fighting a fire.

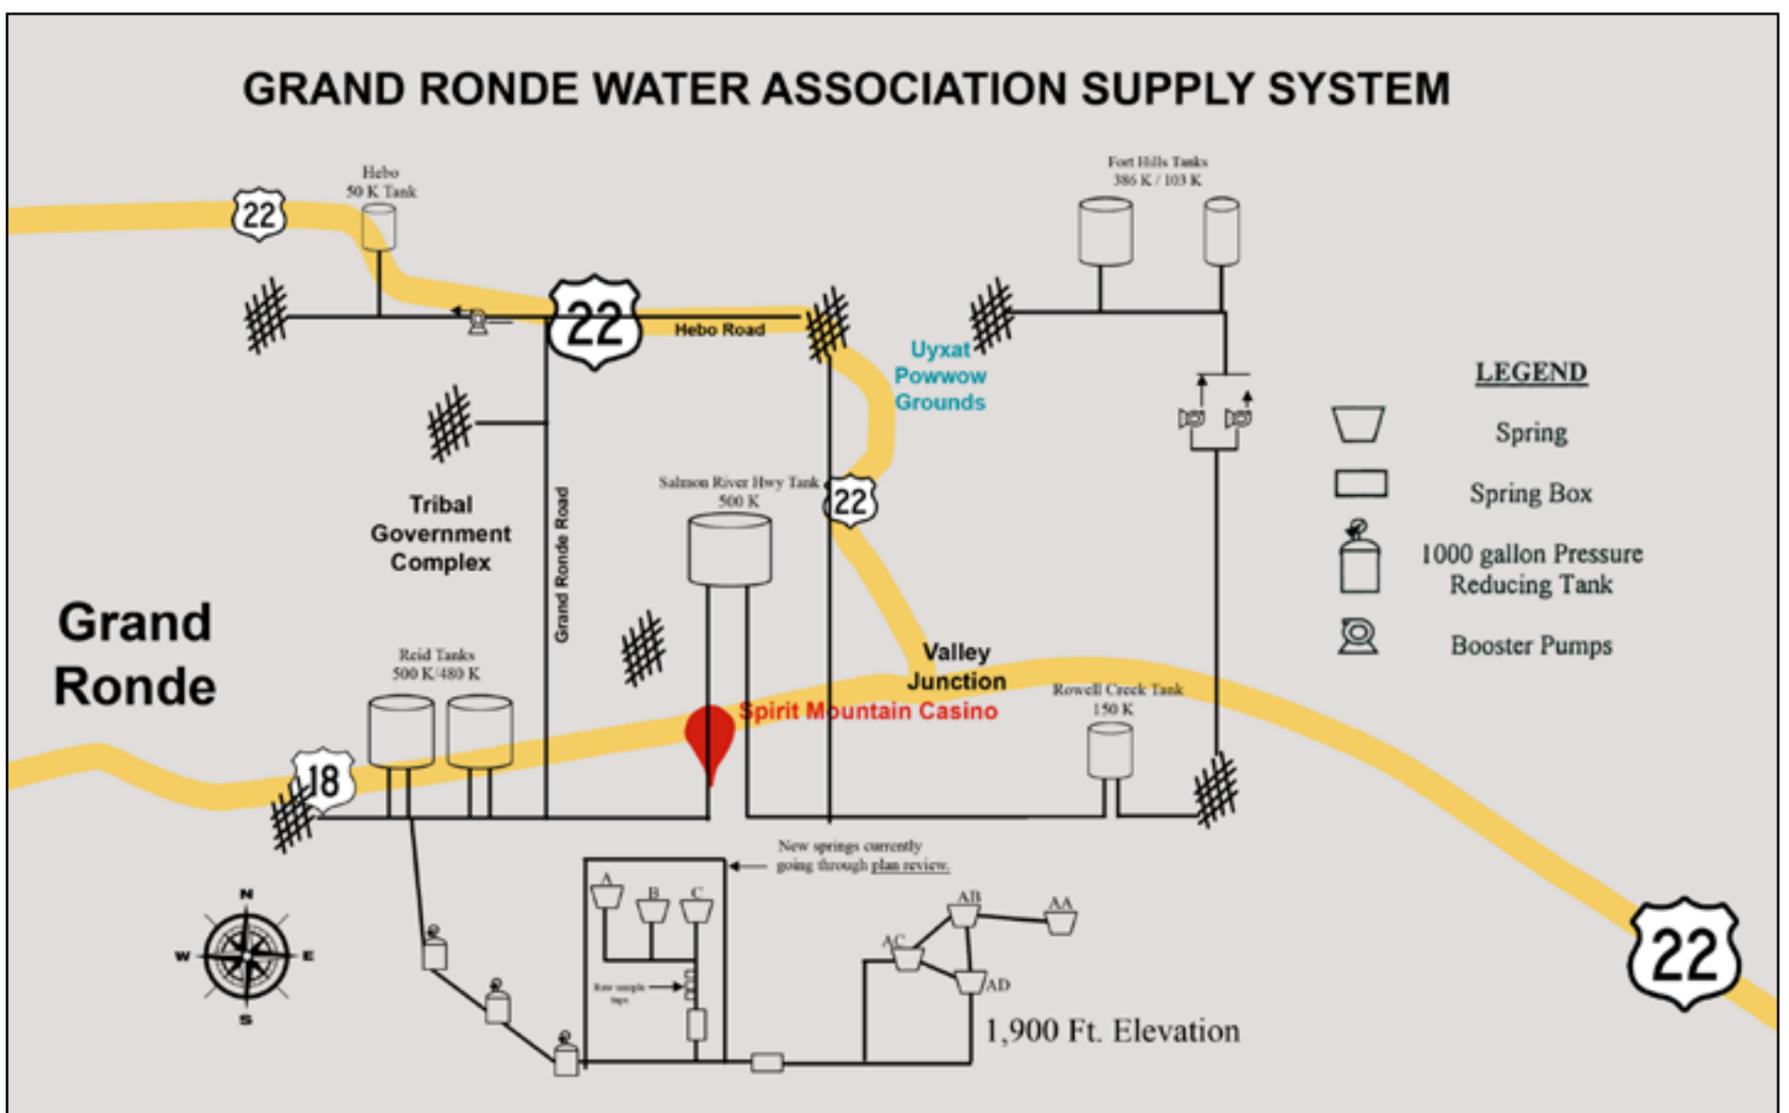

Beyond population growth at the Tribe, Ekstrom says the next largest area of increasing demand in the Water Association’s boundaries is north of Willamina in the Willamina Creek Road and Corbett Acres area.

Tribal concerns

Although there is plenty of water, the Grand Ronde Tribe still has concerns about the supply and quality.

In the draft Strategic Plan, the Tribe is seeking to assert responsible roles in municipal water supply jurisdictions and governing bodies “to provide for Tribal member and CTGR water quality and quantity long-term security.”

Upcoming pipe replacement will help ensure safety

The Tribe has not had a representative serve on the seven-member Water Association Board of Directors since Public Works Coordinator John Mercier left after three years in 2012.

Also included in the draft Strategic Plan is the goal of completing a water rights legal review and the development of a memorandum for Tribal Council to approve to increase the Tribe's security over its municipal water supply.

Part of that legal review, Engineering and Public Works Manager Jesse White says, is determining if 10 Tribal irrigation water rights could ever be used for quasi-municipal purposes.

The Tribe also owns five quasi-municipal water rights that total more than 217 million gallons annually. The water is available for use by the casino and lodge, and as a possible backup supply for the Water Association should its source ever be interrupted.

The Executive Office, Tribal Attorney's Office, Public Works Department and Planning Department have been identified as the Tribal entities that will work on Tribal water issues.

Planning Director Rick George says the likelihood of the Grand Ronde Tribe acquiring its own significant water right from the state of Oregon is probably miniscule based on surface water rights downstream, but the Tribe could become more involved with the Water Association by having a representative on the board.

The Tribe also could build a storage tank that would supply Tribal residents when the Water Association issues a drinking water advisory, which it last did in October 2015 when coliform bacteria was detected. It was the seventh straight year that the Water Association detected coliform bacteria in its supply.

To resolve the issue, the Water Association used chlorine to sanitize the storage tanks. The Water Association doesn't disinfect with chlorine or add fluoride to its water on a regular basis.

At the time, Polk County Environmental Health Supervisor Jim Solvedt said that finding coliform bacteria in rural water systems is not unusual since biomass buildup inside pipes is common.

"It's a really good source of water," he said about the Grand Ronde Community Water Association.

Mercier says his No. 1 item from a Tribal strategic planning perspective would be seeing a larger water line tie-in with the 12-inch water line that ends at the intersection of Grand Ronde and Hebo roads, which would create a loop and improve water supplies and fire protection to úyxat Powwow Grounds and the achafhammi plankhouse off Hebo Road.

"That would improve water delivery in leaps and bounds," Mercier says.

But, he adds, the Tribe does not need to consider creating its own municipal water system because of the abundance of water provided by the Water Association.

"When we talk about water delivery and the different types of water delivery that we need for this community, we want to try to create a system that's just safe for our users," Mercier says. "What that really means to us is just working together with the Water Association as we plan for our needs.

"Personally, us just working with Grand Ronde Water is my desirable. They are already structured and in place to deliver water."

Ekstrom says an upcoming pipe replacement project will help ensure the water supply's safety. The $400,000 project will upsize 4-inch pipes near the springs and allow the Water Association to extract more water. Another project will replace a failing booster pump station near Rowell Creek.

"It'll be a safer supply, not that our current supply is unsafe. It'll just make it safer," Ekstrom says. "If you're only talking about a few hundred more homes, (water supply) should never be an issue." ■

Tribe adopts first honorary member

lodge, which opened with 100 rooms in 1998, follows the Tribe's $13 million investment to remodel the casino in 2016.

The Grand Ronde Tribe is in the enviable position of having the financial resources that it can loan Spirit Mountain Gaming Inc. the necessary funds for remodeling both the casino and lodge and then Spirit Mountain Gaming pays the loan back to the Tribe with interest.

The second vote approved a $360,000 equity contribution to Grand Ronde Food and Fuel Co., which operates the convenience store, for replacement of all gas pumps so they can become card chip reader compliant, remodel the store's interior and install a new car wash. The funds will come from the company's 2018 dividend to the Tribe held in the general fund.

Tribal Council also performed a first, adopting Hattie Mae Emmilee Craig as an honorary member of the Tribe.

Hattie Mae, the daughter of Tribal member Stephanie Craig and Umatilla Tribal member Fermore Joseph Craig Jr., was born Dec. 3, 2018, and walked on eight days later. She and her brother, William, were born prematurely and she passed away from complications.

Hattie Mae was assigned honorary member roll number A0001.

"This is an historic moment," Vice Chair Chris Mercier said as Hattie Mae's parents sat in the audience.

In other action, Tribal Council:

- Approved an application to the Oregon Office of Emergency Management for two State Homeland Security grants totaling $80,000 to update the Grand Ronde Emergency Operations Plan and prepare an Emergency Operations Plan regional response annex;
- Approved an application to the Oregon Department of Transportation for the Tribe's $100,000 in Rural 5311 federal pass-through funding;
- Adopted a resolution that mandates all appointments to Spirit Mountain Gaming Inc.'s Board of Directors shall have terms ending on Sept. 30 and that the terms of current board members will be extended to expire on Sept. 30;
- Appointed Reuben Nelson and Jerry George to the Timber Committee, Anthony Texeira to the Veterans Special Event Board, Valeria Atanacio to the Education Committee and Josephine Ingraham to the Enrollment Committee. All of the terms run through March 2020;
- Approved the fifth amendment to the Tribe's Portland Harbor Environmental Services agreement with Industrial Economics to add work regarding the third phase of natural resource damage assessments;

- Approved final adoption of amendments to the Guardianship and Conservatorship Ordinance that were adopted on an emergency basis in November. The amendments will help protect the assets of disabled Tribal children who are wards of the state by allowing the Tribal Children and Family Services Program to file for conservatorship in Tribal Court. No comments were received on the amendments when they were sent out for a first reading;
- Approved sending amendments to the Leasing Ordinance out for a first reading, which will solicit Tribal member input. The amendments will allow the Tribe to assume authority over the process and approval of leases on Tribal trust lands. "The more self-governance we do, the better," Tribal Attorney Rob Greene said during the Tuesday, Feb. 5, Legislative Action Committee meeting;
- Approved the Tribe's annual application for $13,000 in Oregon Youth Conservation Corps funding that will partially fund the Tribe's Summer Youth Crew. The Tribe has received the grant funding for more than 20 years and it is used to help pay Youth Crew participants;

- And approved an amended professional services agreement with Akana to provide construction administration services for the second phase of construction of the Wind River Apartments. The amendment brings the total agreement with Akana to $113,392.

Also included in the Feb. 6 Tribal Council meeting packet were approved authorizations to proceed that established a proposed financial model for establishing fully funded targets in the Tribal endowments and waived the Committee and Special Event Board travel policy to allow four members of the Youth Council to attend the 2019 UNITY mid-year conference in Arizona in February and allow the remaining three members to attend the national Unity Conference in July in Florida.

The meeting was held at 1:30 p.m. instead of the customary 4 p.m. because of the threat of inclement weather that remained in western Oregon, Tribal Council Chief of Staff Stacia Hernandez said.

The video of the entire meeting can be viewed by visiting the Tribal government's website at www.grandronde.org and clicking on News and then Video. ■

Mercier first new regional director in 40 years

He takes the helm of the Portland BIA office from Stanley Speaks, who retired in 2017.

“I have known Stan for several years and I’m trying to meet with him every few months,” Mercier said. “He has a lot of knowledge and was here for a long time.”

Mercier, 45, is not the only member of his immediate family serving Indian Country. His younger brother, Chris, is Grand Ronde Tribal Council vice chair.

“Indian Country is pretty small so I don’t think it’s uncommon to have situations like these, but you have to be careful and aware of it,” he said.

This means Mercier will need to recuse himself from making any decisions that directly affect the Grand Ronde Tribe.

“Even the perception of that is something I want to completely avoid,” he said. “There are ethics rules for federal employees which are very clear.”

Mercier’s family has a long history in Grand Ronde and he grew up knowing his great-grandparents, Hubert and Martha Mercier. His grandparents are Winston and Michelle Mercier, and parents are Bryce and Patricia Mercier. He also has a half-brother, Damien Mercier.

Mercier is married to wife Christine, and the couple has two children, 7-year-old Kali and 9-year-old Keekoa.

He jokes about being a “professional student” until almost turning 30. First, Mercier earned a bachelor’s degree from the University of Oregon and then a graduate economics certificate from the University of Freiburg in Germany.

in Salem, but Mercier has always had a desire to learn more about the world.

“Education is key,” he said. “College is not just about school. It is also about the chance to experience diversity. I grew up in rural Oregon. It would have been easy to stay there, but going to different schools opened up the world to me.”

Mercier has already dealt with the longest partial federal government shutdown in history during his first three months on the job – no easy task when you have 330 employees and most of them are furloughed.

“What was the hardest part was seeing my staff go through this,” he said. “Some of them live paycheck to paycheck and it was hard (many) to make ends meet. I didn’t want to lose more people.”

Mercier noted that due to retirements, he is down approximately 70 people and is looking to fill positions, something that couldn’t be done during the shutdown.

“Hiring is one of my top three priorities right now,” he said.

The other two are visiting all 45 Tribes in the BIA Northwest region, which includes Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Alaska and Montana, and improving Tribal self-determination.

Mercier said the most interesting part of his new job so far is the variety and the toughest part is the size of the bureaucracy.

“I am working on the culture within the BIA and trying to build on that,” he said. “I want to engage with staff and empower them to believe in the mission. They have the desire to serve Indian Country so I want to make it more collaborative and engaging.”

Although Mercier is enjoying his new job, especially since his employees are back at work, he misses BPA co-workers.

“I was there for 10 years and had a great career,” he said. “It was hard to leave, but I like being dedicated 100 percent to working with Tribes. I started my career that way and miss the camaraderie.”

Part of his goal of visiting all 45 Tribes will begin this summer, when he takes his family on the road in a recreational vehicle and will work remote.

“That trip with my kids is going to be an awesome experience,” he said.

Before Mercier worked for BPA and BIA, he served as a financial advisor for the U.S. Treasury and a program analyst for the Forest Service.

He has had several mentors along the way. One is Roy Sampsel (Choctaw/Wyandotte), who led the way in establishing Tribal fishing rights and greater protection for the Columbia River watershed. He walked on in 2017. He also served the Department of the Interior as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs.

Another mentor is Jamestown S’Klallam Tribal Council Chair Ron Allen.

Allen and Mercier have known each other for 10 years, dating back to when Mercier worked for BPA.

“I have always appreciated his leadership and managerial skills,” Allen said. “He led a large program at BPA and made sure his staff fully understood our sovereignty, jurisdiction and treaty rights. His calm and balanced disposition served him well as a problem solver and caused those who worked with him to have confidence that he understood their views or ideals.”

He added that Mercier is replacing a “Northwest legacy” in Speaks, but that he has reached out to him for insights.

“He brings the right personality and skill set to serve our 45 Tribes in our Northwest region,” Allen said. “He is quick to acknowledge there are many concerns and needs of the Northwest Tribes that he doesn’t understand, but possesses a quick learning curve. ... Bryan is one who looks to insights of his team and those who can provide him the right kind of counsel to make good decisions as a Tribal advocate. We are hopeful he will stick with us for a long time.”

Thinking back on his accomplishments thus far, Mercier said he owes a debt of gratitude to the Tribe.

“The Tribe helped me get through college and graduate debt-free,” he said. “If it wasn’t for that, I would have never gone to Europe or Washington, D.C. The assistance I have gotten has been huge over the years.”

Mercier also worked on the Tribe’s first-ever Summer Youth Crew in 1989 as one of four members.

He’s come a long way from summer youth employee to BIA regional director, but Mercier views as it returning to what he enjoys most: Serving Tribal people.

“I’m excited about this opportunity,” he said. “Being the first new regional director in 40 years can be intimidating, but I want to make this area the crown jewel of BIA operations in the country.” ■

He then earned a master’s degree in international law from Charles III University of Madrid in Spain.

He also served as principal legislative staff on federal Indian policy for Oregon Sen. Gordon Smith from 2003-05 as a Tribal Hatfield Fellow and through the Udall Foundation, which offers scholarships and internships to outstanding Native American and Alaska Native college students who want careers in health care and Tribal public policy.

Studying for advanced degrees and living abroad was far removed, both geographically and socially, from his experiences growing up

Murrell resurrecting Domestic Violence aid program

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

When Tribal member Danielle Murrell relocated to Oregon from Southern California in mid-September and walked in for her first day of work as the Tribe's new Domestic Violence coordinator, she was taking over a program that had been idle for almost a year.

Now, after five full months on the job during which she has learned about the resources available to help women dealing with domestic violence situations, she is ready to reinvigorate the Tribal response for women in need of help.

"Something that spoke to me was another therapist who was Native talked about going back to her Reservation and visiting, and no matter how many trainings you take ... the best way to learn more about your own Tribe is coming back," Murrell says about moving to Oregon. "I think coming back to my own community and learning about my people and more about our traditions and culture is super important."

In 2017, when Anne Falla held the position, the Domestic Violence Program within the Social Services Department received 200 crisis calls and helped more than 80 clients.

Murrell says the current workload for her program is down from the 2017 levels because of the year-long break in the program and the time necessary for her to become familiar with the Tribal, county and state resources available to help domestic violence victims.

However, of those she has worked with, she is seeing mostly domestic violence affecting mothers with children who are assessing their options in possibly leaving an abusive relationship. Common characteristics in her cases are alcohol and drug abuse, as well as a current or ex-partner having a criminal history.

"They are really looking at their options and seeking support," Murrell says. "With trauma-informed care, you want to always provide options. ... We don't direct anybody to do anything. It's all up to them and about providing options."

Murrell says she also has seen cyber stalking situations where ex-partners are tracking their former girlfriend or partner on social media and contacting their friends and relatives, slandering them. "It's definitely a growing problem," she says.

Murrell was born and raised in Southern California, graduating from Edison High School in Huntington Beach. She received her bachelor's degree from California State Fullerton and her master's in social work from California State University-Long Beach in 2011.

Her social work experience is varied, including working six years for the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health, aiding the second largest Native American/Alaskan Native population in a county in the United States as a therapist. She also is a licensed clinical social worker in both California and Oregon, meaning she can provide clinical therapy.

"I did a lot of trauma work," she says about her days working out in the field in the Los Angeles area.

Her parents are Debra Leno and Danny Estrada and her grandparents are Maxine and Bud Leno. She is the middle child. Her older sister, Nicole Hewitt, is the Tribe's Youth Prevention manager and her younger brother, Erik Estrada, lives in Southern California.

Murrell says she decided to go into social work because she has always been helping people, even at a young age.

"Even in high school, I was volunteering. I volunteered at a program called Get on the Bus, where you work with youth who are unable to see their incarcerated mothers and you take them to go visit their parents. ... I think I've always wanted to be somewhere helping people."

She credits her mother's involvement in such things as being a court-appointed special advocate and volunteering at a hospice for instilling the desire to help in herself and her siblings.

Murrell, 39, is looking forward to beefing up her staff by hiring two positions that also have been vacant – domestic violence relief advocate and victims of crime advocate – and getting a domestic violence hotline up and running.

She also is starting Women Moving Forward, a 12-week support group to provide support for women moving beyond abusive relationships.

Murrell can help all Tribal members facing domestic violence situations, not just those who live in Grand Ronde or the six-county service area.

"Right now I'm trying to do outreach and, because the position was vacant for so long, to let the community know I'm here and the program is up and running," she says. "I'm here to help in any way I can."

Murrell can be contacted at 503-879-1660 or via e-mail at danielle.murrell@grandronde.org. ■

Kimsey is new Young Child Wellness Community coordinator

By Danielle Frost
Smoke Signals staff writer

To say the Kimsey family is well-known in Grand Ronde would be putting it lightly.

Marvin Kimsey was a key Restoration leader and his family has carried on that legacy through their work with the Tribe.

Now, granddaughter Keri Kimsey, 29, is helping the Tribe's youngest members as the Young Child Wellness Community coordinator. It is a position that is new to the Tribe and grant funded.

"When I heard about this job, it sounded perfect," she said. "It's an opportunity to work with families, the community and wellness."

Kimsey began working for the Tribe nine years ago in the Head Start preschool program.

"I soon realized working with children was really meaningful for me," she said.

After the Tribe enacted its Tribal Employment Rights Ordinance in 2014, she joined her father, Duke Kimsey, in that department, serving as its secretary. TERO was formed to provide quality services for the Grand Ronde Reservation and surrounding region by increasing and enhancing employment opportunities, and promoting Tribal and Indian preference in contracting and subcontracting.

Kimsey began her new job a month ago, with the main goal being development of positive relationships with families in the Grand Ronde community and connection with current programs serving children and families. Kimsey's job is funded through the Linking Actions for Unmet Needs in Children's Health, or LAUNCH. It is a childhood wellness program targeted at children from birth through 8 years old.

According to the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services, which funds the program, LAUNCH focuses on the wellness of young children by addressing the physical, social, emotional, cognitive and behavioral aspects of their development. The goal of Project LAUNCH is to "create a shared vision for the wellness of young children that drives the development of federal, state, territorial, Tribal and locally-based networks for the coordination of key child-serving systems and the integration of behavioral and physical health services."

The desired result is for children to thrive in safe, supportive environments, and enter school ready to learn and succeed. The five-year grant doesn't require matching funds.

"We are looking at how we can collaborate with our efforts, and also create a liaison between internal and external social service agencies," Kimsey said. "The goal is to have kids ready for school and able to thrive. There has been a huge need for this because of behavioral health issues in school. We want to give kids and families tools and resources to help."

Internal agencies included in the effort will be the Tribe's Education, Social Services and Health & Wellness departments. Outside partners include county social service agencies and area school districts.

Health & Wellness Quality Improvement Manager Dawn Doar is also serving as LAUNCH director.

"Right now the focus of the program is serving Tribal children, families and descendants," Doar said. "We are very excited about it. This is a huge opportunity for the Tribe."

During her first year on the job,

Kimsey will attend community events, and network with children and families to gauge the highest priority needs.

"The first year of the grant is identifying needs and putting together a plan," Doar said. "The second year we roll it out. Keri's job is to research and gather information so we can engage people in the process."

Kimsey said her nine years working for the Tribe and growing up in Grand Ronde have prepared her for this task.

"I realize how many programs we have that are geared toward kids," she said. "It will make my job much easier in providing resources when we have the services already in place. I really enjoy being able to work with people in these programs, and start a new adventure of child wellness and family services. Everyone here has been really supportive and they are excited for me."

Doar describes Kimsey as a "breath of fresh air."

"She really hit the ground running and is not afraid to try new ideas, and blaze a trail," she said.

When she's not working, Kimsey enjoys spending time with boyfriend Sean Kyllonen and sons Ben, 9, and Reed, 5, as well as attending her sons' sporting events. She also likes music, cooking and camping.

"The Tribe has been a big part of my family's life and my connection with the community motivates me to do the best that I can to serve," Kimsey said.

Added Doar, "Keri is a great fit for this position and it's a good opportunity for her to learn all about the specifics of grant work, and also to help the Tribe move closer to meeting needs for all of our kids."

Kimsey can be reached at 503-879-3476 or keri.kimsey@grandronde.org. ■

Smoke Signals debuts new website

Smoke Signals staff

In its continuing evolution as an independent Tribal newspaper, Smoke Signals unveiled its own website on Monday, Feb. 4, at www.smokesignals.org.

The newspaper website is now independent of, but still linked to, the main Tribal website at www.grandronde.org.

The Grand Ronde Editorial Board and Smoke Signals staff have been working with the Portland firm Subtext to create the new website since the summer of 2018. All Smoke Signals stories since 2011 appear on the new website and the site is still linked to the governmental website, as well as the archives that store PDFs of Smoke Signals dating back to the 1980s.

"I think Smoke Signals readers will find the new website design cleaner, easier to navigate and much more visually pleasing than the Smoke Signals section on the governmental website," said Editor Dean Rhodes. "Plus, there are now easy links to our podcasts on Spreaker, as well as to our social media accounts on Twitter, Facebook, YouTube and Instagram."

The Editorial Board authorized purchasing the smokesignals.org url for 10 years last summer and the new Smoke Signals website, although hosted on Tribal servers, creates an added layer of independence between the Tribal newspaper and Tribal elected officials.

Smoke Signals became an independent Tribal newspaper in January 2017 after passage of the Independent Tribal Press Ordinance in December 2016. The ordinance established a free and independent press to ensure the Tribal publication has the independence to report objectively on Grand Ronde news without interference from Tribal administration or elected officials.

"I also think that readers will like the use of Chinuk Wawa on the website," Rhodes said. "The name of the newspaper there is smok signalz. The one drawback, however, is that people interested in independently reported news on the Tribe will now have to go to the new website and not www.grandronde.org. We will no longer be posting our material to that website." ■

College Fund publishes higher education report

DENVER, Colo. – Last spring after a parent attending a college tour called campus police with concerns about two Native Americans in the group, the American Indian College Fund convened a group of national higher education experts and Native students to address the social issues Native Americans face on campus.

On Tuesday, Feb. 5, the College Fund published “Creating Visibility and Healthy Learning Environments for Native Americans in Higher Education” as a tool for higher education institutions to advance the visibility of Native American students at their schools and to ensure that Native history, achievements and perspectives are respected.

The report was crafted by the Indigenous Higher Education Equity Initiative in Denver, Colo., in August 2018, which was hosted by the College Fund in cooperation with leadership from Colorado State University. It highlights steps colleges and universities can take with recruiting, financial aid, student orientation, recognition of Native lands, curriculum creation, establishment of meeting places for Native people, work with nearby Tribes and more.

Currently, only 14 percent of American Indian/Alaska Native people age 25 and older have a college degree, which is less than half of that of other groups in the United States.

The College Fund believes that colleges and universities can use “Creating Visibility” as a guide, helping them make campuses welcoming spaces for Native students.

Fever and a rash? Call before you go to the clinic

By Danielle Frost
Smoke Signals staff writer

The Grand Ronde Health & Wellness Department is strongly encouraging anyone who thinks they might have measles to not visit the clinic. Although no cases have been reported in Polk or Yamhill counties, the clinic is urging caution.

Kelly Rowe

Signs have been posted on the clinic doors, alerting patients who have fever and a rash to stay outside and call the reception desk at 503-879-1407.

“It’s spreading so we have the signs up for precautionary reasons,” Health Services Executive Director Kelly Rowe said. “If someone suspects they have measles, we can come out and see them.”

According to the Oregon Department of Public Health, those at the greatest risk of measles include infants younger than 12 months who cannot be vaccinated, unvaccinated pregnant women and people with weakened immune systems.

Measles symptoms typically begin with a fever, cough, runny nose and red eyes, followed by a rash that begins on the face and spreads over the rest of the body.

Common complications include ear infections, lung infections and diarrhea. Swelling of the brain, although rare, is another complication. Those who contract measles can be contagious days before they know they are sick.

Tribal Pediatrician Allison Empey suggested parents who are worried about measles double-check that their children are current on vaccinations.

“Measles is a vaccine preventable disease,” Empey said. “The Centers for Disease Control recommends routine childhood immunization for measles, mumps and rubella vaccine starting with the first dose at 12 to 15 months of age, and the second dose at 4 through 6 years of age or at least 28 days following the first dose.”

One concern cited frequently by people with children too young to be vaccinated is whether it is safe to take them out in public.

“It is safe to take your children under 12 months of age or those who have not been immunized out in public,” Empey said. “Measles has not been reported in the Grand Ronde area.”

As of the last report from the Oregon Health Authority on Jan. 30, measles exposure sites in Oregon were concentrated to the Portland area and in Bend. Clark County, Wash., has 53 confirmed cases of measles.

“Measles is a highly contagious respiratory viral infection,” Empey said. “Measles spreads by having direct contact with oral and nasal secretions with someone with measles and through the air when someone with measles coughs or sneezes. Small particles of virus may remain in the air for several hours after a cough or sneeze. Therefore, to avoid spreading measles if you suspect you have measles, please call the clinic first.” ■

Merkley co-sponsors Savanna's Act introduction

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Oregon Sen. Jeff Merkley joined with his bipartisan colleagues in introducing Savanna's Act, legislation to combat the epidemic of murdered and missing Native American women and girls by improving the federal government's response to addressing the crisis.

The bill would increase coordination among all levels of law enforcement, increase data collection and information sharing, and empower Tribal governments with the resources they need in cases involving missing and murdered indigenous women and girls wherever they occur.

"Murder rates against Native women are a shocking 10 times more than the national average," Merkley said. "That is tragic and unacceptable. This bipartisan bill finally lays the foundation for getting these women, and Native communities, the justice they deserve."

Savanna's Act aims to bridge the gap of the limited data on the number of missing Native women by directing the U.S. Department of Justice to formulate new guidelines for the reporting of violent crimes against indigenous people. The bill improves Tribal access to certain federal crime information databases by mandating that the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior consult with Tribes on how to further improve these databases and access to them.

It also requires certain federal agencies to solicit recommendations from Tribes on enhancing the safety of Native women.

The legislation is named for Savanna LaFontaine-Greywind, who was abducted and killed in Fargo, N.D. ■

Walking On...

Marilyn Gail Portwood

Dec. 16, 1936 – Jan. 28, 2019

Tribal Elder Marilyn Gail (Walker) Portwood, 82, walked on peacefully, surrounded by her loving family on Monday, Jan. 28, 2019.

Marilyn was born in Portland on Dec. 16, 1936, to Nevilles “Jim” Walker and Dora (Williams) Walker. Marilyn went to public school in Portland, including Fernwood and Beaumont grade schools and Grant High School. She attended the University of Oregon and was a member of the Alpha Phi sorority. She received her bachelor’s degree in English from Portland State University.

Marilyn married her husband, Richard “Dick” Portwood, in June 1957. She had a career as a middle school teacher in various school districts in Oregon, including Willamina, where she taught numerous Tribal members.

Marilyn descended from Chief Tumulth, a Cascade/Watlala Tribal leader and signatory on the 1855 Treaty of the Willamette Valley. She was a proud and active member of the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde.

Marilyn lived a remarkable life, full of purpose, determination and grace. She was kind to all who she met and treated everyone with great respect. She and Richard loved to travel, ski and play tennis, and she was an accomplished dominoes player. She loved spending time in central Oregon in the peace and quiet of their Black Butte Ranch vacation home, usually in the company of friends and family.

Marilyn was a beloved member of the Ascension Episcopal Parish family for 35 years.

She is survived by her loving husband of 62 years, Richard; her sisters, Joan (Walker) Anderson and Valerie (Walker) Alexander; her daughter, Nina Portwood Shields and husband, Tim; her daughter, Lee Ann Huffman and husband, Eric; her son, Michael; and grandchildren, Hannah, Abigail, Nicholas, Richard “Ricky,” Lucy and Dominic.

A celebration of life will be held at a later date. At her request, memorials should be sent to Ascension Episcopal Parish or the Oregon Food Bank.

and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorial contribution be made to Meals on Wheels. Shaffer-Jensen Memory Chapel assisted the family.

A graveside service was held Wednesday, Feb. 13, at Cloverdale Cemetery in Boise, Idaho.

LaVerne May Teter (Hosford) Bean

Aug. 18, 1922 – Aug. 25, 2018

Our beloved mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and great-great-grandmother went home to be with the Lord on Saturday, Aug. 25, 2018, just one week after her 96th birthday. She celebrated her birthday on powwow weekend surrounded by family and friends.

Tribal spouse LaVerne May Teter Bean was born Aug. 18, 1922, to Marshall and Pearl Teter in Rickreall, Ore. She attended school in Rickreall until the ninth grade. She met her husband Fremond Bean at the age of 15 and moved to Grand Ronde in 1937. Together, they had six children: Donna, Frank, Ellen, Tom, Linda and Joyce.

Despite being a mother of six children, LaVerne was a logger, helping Fremond run the first Indian-owned logging company in the area, F.F. Bean Logging. She set chokers, scaled logs in her moccasins, ran equipment and managed the payroll and taxes.

In 1957, the family moved to Siletz, Ore., and LaVerne managed the S&H Green Stamp store in nearby Toledo.

After 25 years of marriage to Fremond, they divorced and she moved to Portland. She went to work for Jantzen Woolen Mills as a seamstress where she met Bob Hosford and his son, Danny. During her time with Bob and Danny, she helped Bob with his car sales business and became a car saleswoman. Through Bob, LaVerne became involved in the Portland professional wrestling scene. She took great pride in being part of the team that managed and looked out for professional wrestler and longtime wrestling promoter Sandy Barr.

She used her skills as a seamstress to make costumes for wrestlers and her work was much in demand by wrestlers on the Portland circuit, such as Lonnie Mayne, Tony Bourne and Dutch Savage, to name a few.

After separating from Bob, she lived in Eugene and Salem, Ore., and Phoenix, Ariz., before choosing to be near her family and settling into retirement on the Grand Ronde Indian Reservation.

All her life she was known for her sewing skills. She made quilts, pillows, clothes, ties and traditional Native American ribbon shirts. She enjoyed knitting, crocheting, embroidery and macramé. LaVerne also had a keen eye for crossword and jigsaw puzzles.

LaVerne was preceded in death by her sons, Thomas Joseph and Francis Bean; daughter, Ellen Bean Campbell Fischer; and son-in-law, Duke Olson.

LaVerne’s surviving children are daughters Donna Bean Stronach, Linda Bean Hostler Olson and Joyce Bean Kirk. This amazing matriarch also is survived by 18 grandchildren, 34 great-grandchildren and 15 great-great-grandchildren.

At her request, there will be no funeral services. A private luncheon and interment for family and close friends will be held on Sunday, Feb. 24, at the Grand Ronde Community Center, 9615 Grand Ronde Road. ■

Eldon Lee Leaton Sr.

Aug. 7, 1930 – Feb. 8, 2019

Tribal Elder Eldon Lee Leaton Sr. was born to William and Bernice Leaton on Aug. 7, 1930, in North Bend, Ore. He grew up living above the Gold and Silver Falls and Allegheny in Coos County. His early years were spent working hard and with a strong work ethic.

He married Elizabeth J. Hinds in 1950, and of this marriage was born Eldon Lee Jr. He then joined the Army in 1955 and was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., and then Fort Bliss, Texas.

In 1956, he married Edith Wilson. While at Fort Bliss, he and Edith would have a son, William Lee, in 1956, and a daughter, Linda Marie, in 1957.

After being discharged, Eldon started his trucking career in Cimarron, N.M., and then at several locations in California, including Arcata, Eureka, Baker and Palo Alto, and then Grangeville, Idaho. He drove logging trucks, belly dumps and operated other types of logging and highway construction equipment.

In 1966, they completed the family with Lonnie Lee. In 1972, he gave up the logging and moved the family to Payette, Idaho, where he started with a 20-acre apple orchard. What was unique to this idea was that he knew how to fall timber and haul it to the mills. He thought you only had to pick the fruit. Thinking he would only have to work one or two months out of the year, he learned hard and fast that you basically worked year-round and long hours regardless of the weather.

He, however, was very successful and finished with 80 acres of orchard, vegetables and hay. He married Peggy Peterson in 1994. In 2001, he was done with the orchard and relocated to St. Maries, Idaho, where he could get back to his woods and hauling logs. In 2004, he returned to Payette and another 20 acres.

Eldon lived a very full life with stories that will be always treasured. He liked so many things, such as elk hunting, fishing, flying his planes and collecting stuff, and will always be remembered for how he could figure out any problem and fix it. He loved his pets: Pilot, Midnight, Blackie, Lobo, Lady, Rusty, Lacy, Jake and Indie.

He was preceded in death by his parents, William and Bernice Leaton; sister, Hattie Cotter; and wife, Peggy.

He is survived by his sons, Eldon Jr. (Kitty), of Payette, William (Joyce) of Roseburg, Ore., and Lonnie of Ontario, Ore.; daughter, Linda Wilson (Greg) of Payette; four grandsons, John Raines, Hugh Blacketer II, and Larry and Tyler Leaton; sister, Wilma Hoelig of Huntington Beach, Calif.;

Ava Fagundes

This month, the Youth Education Department would like to recognize Ava Fagundes for her outstanding work ethic and academic success.

Whenever we see Ava at school, she is working hard and on top of her classes. She has a great attitude and never shies away from a challenge.

Ava attributes her successes to paying attention in class and making sure to ask questions so she can always be informed about what is going on.

Ava is also involved in athletics. She plays volleyball and basketball, which is her favorite. After high school, Ava would like to either be an author, because she loves to write, or a forensic scientist, because she finds the field very interesting.

She would like to attend Western Oregon University because it is a good school close to home and she has enjoyed tours and activities there with the K-5 program.

Her advice to other students would be to pay attention in class, don't be embarrassed to ask questions, try not to talk or get distracted, and get help if you need it.

Ava is kind, hardworking and an excellent role model for her peers. We are so proud of all that she has accomplished and know she will continue to be successful. Keep up the good work, Ava!

Josh Henry

Willamina High School sophomore Josh Henry is Youth Education's Student Spotlight for the Month.

Josh has worked tirelessly to improve his grades and his overall approach to academics. Josh is the son of Anthony Henry of Grand Ronde and Terry Huber of Oakdale, Ore. He credits his grandmother Marion Mercier as being an inspiration to him and improving his academics.

Josh says his academic approach has improved because he has increased his desire to succeed this year. He also utilizes all the resources available to him and other Tribal students, and has worked hard in Guided Study with Kaylee Oakes and Kevin Simmons.

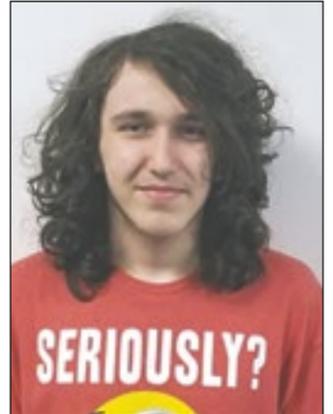

Kaylee Oakes, Guided Study instructor at Willamina High School, says, "Josh worked extremely hard all first semester and even wrote a novel during November with over 9,000 words for his English class. He has developed positive relationships with other classmates in Guided Study and we love having him in class."

Josh's future plans include working in forestry in one capacity or another. He enjoys the solitude that comes from being in the forest and someday hopes to be able to enjoy this every day.

In his spare time Josh likes to ride his bike and read. Josh's favorite book is "It" by Stephen King and also recommends "Between Shades of Gray" by Ruta Sepetys and another King book titled "Dark Tower."

Josh provides this wisdom to other students, "Put your mind to what you want and can do" and "Don't wait to do anything that you can do now," and "seek help where you need it."

Trey Danforth

Within the pages of a book, one can get lost in an imaginary world filled with wizards and dragons, or perhaps get the feeling of being transported to a future land of zombie terror.

These are just a few of the reasons why Tribal member Trey Danforth loves to read books, especially if they are in the Fantasy genre.

The Willamina Elementary School fifth-grader enjoys art, reading and language arts classes during his school time, and has scored in the top 95 percent of his class in reading. He claims to not be the biggest fan of math, but has shown exceptional work ethic with the extra time he's spent out of class working on raising his level of understanding.

Trey dreams of one day being an archeologist or paleontologist, and knows that attending a university will have to be in his future plans to attain his goals.

The 11-year-old states that his mother is his hero because "she's there for me when anything bad happens." Trey loves nachos, popcorn and bacon, and his hobbies include writing and playing video games.

On weekends, Trey's favorite thing to do is visit his grandparents because they take him out to eat at many different restaurants, and sometimes his grandfather takes out his classic green pickup truck that Trey loves to ride around in.

Police Department has non-emergency text line

The Grand Ronde Tribal Police Department has created a non-emergency text line.

"We learned in our last school meeting that kids would like a different way to communicate with the police if they have a non-emergency situation," Tribal Police Chief Jake McKnight said. "We all know kids love to text so my officers and I decided this would be a great tool to utilize."

The new text number is 541-921-2927.

"Even though this is mostly designed for children, I don't want adults thinking that they can't use it as well. If you have a non-emergency situation or question, feel free to contact my officer via text through this line. When one of my officers receives the text, they will call you back when they have time."

McKnight said that emergency situations still require people to call 911. For more information, contact McKnight at 503-879-1474. ■

Book review: "There, There" by Tommy Orange.

Author Tommy Orange is an enrolled member of the Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes of Oklahoma. He was born and raised in Oakland, Calif., where this story takes place. "There, There" is Orange's debut novel and it's a gripping dive into the Native American community.

Orange starts the book with a powerful prologue about Native American history and how it was filled with treaties, betrayal and murder. "There, There" tells the story of 12 characters, each traveling to the Big Oakland Powwow.

Each character struggles with identity, community, substance abuse and poverty in the urban setting of Oakland. As the story progresses, we learn more about each individual's reasons for attending the powwow – some are generous, some fearful, some joyful and some violent. Momentum builds toward a conclusion that will change everything for these characters.

This book flows beautifully. Orange has poetic style of writing that will keep you captivated until the very end. – By Crystal Bigelow

Heart disease is the leading cause of death for both men and women in the United States. The good news? It is also one of the most preventable. Making heart-healthy choices, knowing your family health history and the risk factors for heart disease, having regular check-ups and working with your physician to manage your health are all integral aspects of saving lives from this often silent killer. Heart disease is an umbrella term that includes conditions such as coronary artery disease, heart attack, cardiac arrest, congestive heart failure, and congenital heart diseases. The most common cause of heart disease is coronary artery disease (CAD), which is a blocked or narrowed coronary artery that supplies the heart with blood.

Heart Attack Warning Signs

Light-headedness or dizziness		Cold sweat or nausea

Fainting or extreme fatigue

Women might not experience the chest pain that is often noted as the most common sign of heart attack. Some women who have had heart attacks say they thought they had the symptoms associated with the flu.

5 If you have any of these symptoms for more than 5 minutes and are unsure of the cause, call 9-1-1. Treatment works best if given within 1 hour of when heart attack symptoms begin.

Smoke Signals starts own Facebook page

Smoke Signals launched its own Facebook page and is posting its stories, photos and podcasts to that page.

Popular features, such as photo galleries from Tribal events and links to Smoke Signals podcasts and stories, are now featured on the newspaper's Facebook page.

"This is part of the continuing evolution of an independent Tribal press for the Grand Ronde Tribe," Editor Dean Rhodes said. "The other two Facebook pages are outlets for official Tribal government announcements and positions, while the Smoke Signals Facebook page will be a conduit of information dissemination for the independent Tribal press that was created in January 2017. This also accomplishes a goal of the Grand Ronde Editorial Board, which seeks to create a defined separation between the Tribal government and the Tribal independent press."

Rhodes will be the moderator of the Smoke Signals Facebook page, which can be "friended" at www.facebook.com/SmokeSignalsCTGR/.

"Although I will miss having the more than 4,500 friends on the main Grand Ronde Facebook page, I am hopeful that many of them will quickly friend Smoke Signals on Facebook so that they can keep abreast of independently reported news about the Tribe," Rhodes said. "In addition, this separate page will give us more latitude to post links of other stories about Native American Tribes and issues regionally and nationally that Tribal members might be interested in reading about."

For more information, contact Rhodes at dean.rhodes@grandronde.org or call 503-879-1463. ■

Hunter's Education Course set for March 30-31

Youth who are interested in obtaining a Hunter's Education Certificate should attend a class held in Grand Ronde at the Natural Resources Department office building off Hebo Road.

The class will be held 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, March 30-31. Youth must attend both days and bring lunch with them.

The class is open to Tribal and nonTribal members age 9 to 17 by the beginning of the 2019 hunting season. Visit the Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife website to register for the class, which includes a nonrefundable $10 fee.

Hunters age 17 and younger must pass a certified hunter's education class before they can hunt unless they are participating in the Mentor Youth Hunter Program for youth age 9 to 15. The minimum age to hunt big game is 12 and youth must be accompanied by an adult 21 or older when hunting.

Class size is limited so signing up soon is suggested.
