Grand Ronde members back Chinook Nation recognition effort

By Dean Rhodes

ACOMA, Wash. – Three members of the Grand Ronde Tribal Council attended a rally held at the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Washington in Tacoma on Monday, Jan. 6, that supported the Chinook Indian Nation's continuing fight for federal recognition.

Tribal Council Secretary Jon A. George and Tribal Council members Denise Harvey and Lisa Leno attended the event. In addition, employees from the Cultural Resources Department, including Greg Archuleta, Travis Stewart, Jordan Mercier and David Harrelson, attended along with other Grand Ronde Tribal members and government employees.

The rally was held in connection with a hearing for summary judgment in the Chinook Indian Nation's 2017 civil lawsuit against the U.S. Department of Interior and represents the latest development in the Chinook Indian Nation's ongoing battle for federal acknowledgment.

Judge Ronald Bruce Leighton, the judge presiding over the lawsuit, granted the Tribe a hearing for summary judgment motions.

The rally started at 1 p.m. and the hearing on summary judgment and a drum and prayer circle were held at 3 p.m. The Grand Ronde drum stayed throughout the proceedings, drumming outside the courthouse in the rain.

The hearing was to determine whether the Tribe can seek recognition from the federal government after its recognition was revoked in 2001 by the George W. Bush administration. Tribes that have applied for recognition and been denied can be prevented from re-applying.

In August 2017, the Chinook Indian Nation sued the federal government in the Ninth Circuit of the U.S. District Court for its right to re-apply as well as asking for funds guaranteed to the Tribe in 1970 that have never been paid.

In the 2010 census, Native Americans and Alaska Natives living on Reservations were undercounted by 4.9 percent, according to Census Bureau data.

Grand Ronde Housing Administrative Program Manager Joan Dugger is hoping to change that trend by serving as a liaison for the Tribe to ensure accurate counts.

Comments Requested on Plans for Grand Ronde Veterans Memorial Improvements

The Grand Ronde Tribe's Veterans Memorial was built in 2001 and a couple of the four service branch pillars are running out of space. The Tribe is planning on acquiring two more pillars and incorporating them into the current memorial in a complementary manner. If you would like to comment on this planned project, please contact Tribal Council. You may e-mail them through Shannon.Ham-Texeira@grandronde.org. You may also call Tribal Council staff at 503-879-2301. The Oregon Parks and Recreation Department has a Veterans and War Memorial Grant program. The Tribe is considering applying for funding to help afford the cost of the needed expansion.

PROPOSED GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION ORDINANCE OPEN FOR COMMENT

The Tribal Council, in consultation with the Tribal Attorney's Office, has proposed adopting a Government Administration Ordinance. The proposed ordinance was given a first reading at the Dec. 31, 2019, Tribal Council meeting.

The proposed ordinance combines and updates selected provisions from two older Tribal ordinances which have been in effect since 1993, but which have not been updated since 1994, and will better reflect the current structure of the Tribal government. If the proposed Government Administration Ordinance is adopted, the following ordinances would be rescinded:

- Tribal Government Purpose Ordinance
- Tribal Government Organization and Procedures Ordinance

For a copy of the proposed Government Administration Ordinance, please contact the Tribal Attorney's Office at 503-879-4664. Tribal Council invites comment on the proposed ordinance. Please send your comments to the Tribal Attorney's Office, 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, OR 97347, or by e-mail to legal@grandronde.org.

Comments must be received by Feb. 15, 2020. ■

Journey set to arrive in Grand Ronde on June 3

The 2020 Peace and Dignity Journey will begin on April 14 when spiritual runners will start carrying sacred staffs from Chickaloon, Alaska, and the tip of South of America.

After eight months, the runners will meet on Dec. 14 in the middle of the Earth – Quito, Ecuador.

Peace and Dignity Journeys have been held every four years since 1992 with the purpose of fulfilling an ancient prophecy of the Eagle and the Condor coming together. The joining represents the unification of indigenous peoples from North and South America after centuries of colonization. The 2020 journey will feature a special prayer for Sacred Fire.

A few core runners are still needed to make the commitment to do all or most of the run. Purification ceremonies for core runners are usually held in California.

For more information, contact Al Gonzalez at atl@peaceanddignity.org or Anobel Gutierrez at pdjyolotlie_2008@yahoo.com.

The Peace and Dignity Journey is scheduled to go through Oregon in early June with a tentative June 3 visit to Grand Ronde. ■

2015 – The Grand Ronde Tribe closed on the purchase of a 91-acre parcel at the Chahalpam property fronting the North Santiam River in Marion County, bringing the total acreage to more than 429 that the Tribe would manage for conservation purposes. The 91 acres were worth more than $900,000 and the purchase was funded entirely by the Bonneville Power Administration's Willamette Wildlife Mitigation Program. The transaction included more than $140,000 in operation and maintenance costs, which also were funded by BPA.

2010 – A powwow originally organized to remind Oregonians that Native peoples inhabited the Pacific Northwest long before statehood is on its way to becoming an annual event. The second annual Gathering of Oregon's First Nations Powwow was set for Jan. 30 at the Oregon State Fair & Expo Center's Salem Pavilion. The late January event date was picked to symbolically occur before Oregon's official 150th birthday in 2009, commemorating Native history that occurred before statehood, which occurred on Feb. 14, 1859.

2005 – The Tribe donated $10,000 to the Red Cross to aid victims of the Thailand tsunami, which killed more than 200,000 people. "I think it shows that we are trying to do our part," Tribal Council Vice Chair Reyn Leno said. "Although our main focus is the well-being of our people and our community, we have compassion. This is about the big picture."

2000 – Tribal Council members Ed Larsen and Earl LaBonte were appointed to serve on the Yamhill County Transportation Advisory Committee to help with a public transportation study in the county, along with safety issues along highways 99, 18 and 22. The group also was exploring how to best help those who were "transportation disadvantaged," such as the elderly, those with disabilities and youth.

1995 – Tribal Council adopted the 1995 budget, which included funding to establish an Elder pension program, economic development fund and a cultural board, and provided additional funding for education and training scholarships. Tribal Council also directed that new housing repairs and improvements be funded with Tribal dollars rather than BIA funds to allow the Tribe greater flexibility in how the money was used.

1990 - No January edition available.

1985 – The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde announced its first post-Restoration election would be held in March to select a new Tribal Council in accordance with the Restoration Act, which stated that an election must be held within 120 days of when the Secretary of the Interior signed the Tribal Constitution. The election was to be conducted by a yet-to-be-selected committee of Tribal members.

2020 Contest Powwow date changes to Aug. 14-16

The 2020 Contest Powwow will be held Aug. 14-16 and not the following weekend as tentatively listed in the recently released Tribal calendar.

Powwow Special Event Board Chair Dana Ainam said the Powwow SEB had been working to confirm the dates of the Siletz Tribe's annual powwow due to Aug. 1 falling on a weekend. Ainam received confirmation after the calendar was sent to be printed by the Publications Department. The Grand Ronde Contest Powwow will be held Aug. 14-16 instead of the originally estimated date.

In addition, the annual Agency Creek Round Dance is now scheduled for the weekend of April 3-4.

Tribal members are encouraged to check Smoke Signals for any events listed as "tentative" in the 2020 Tribal calendar as the event date approaches, said Publications Coordinator Dean Rhodes.

"Since we have to work so far ahead when creating the calendar, some event dates were still tentative when we had to send the document to our contractor," Rhodes said.

General Council briefed on Tribal land holdings

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

Grand Ronde Tribal land holdings grew at a 5 percent clip in 2019, according to statistics shared by Tribal Lands Department Manager Jan Michael Looking Wolf Reibach during the Sunday, Jan. 5, General Council meeting held in the Tribal Community Center.

In 2019, the Tribe added 755.42 acres to its portfolio that included two conservation properties and the former Blue Heron Paper Mill site in Oregon City, bringing the total to 15,864 acres.

The largest addition to the Tribe's land holdings is also the closest—the 670-acre Noble Oaks property located between Sheridan and Grand Ronde. The property was donated to the Grand Ronde Tribe by The Nature Conservancy, which also gave the Tribe about $1 million in stewardship funding.

The Tribe also received another conservation property, the 64.85-acre Ahsney property near Rickreall worth more than $500,000. Its acquisition was funded by the Bonneville Power Administration's Willamette Wildlife Mitigation Program, which also provides approximately $100,000 in stewardship funding.

Perhaps the most important acquisition in 2019 was the Blue Heron Paper Mill site adjacent to Willamette Falls in Oregon City. The Tribe purchased the 23-acre site for $15.25 million in August.

"Without our land, we don't really have our identity as a people," Reibach said. "Our land gives us that opportunity, that Mother Earth connection. It ties us to our history and brings us into the present."

Tribal land holdings in Oregon now stretch from the former Multnomah Greyhound Park in Wood Village to Kilchis Point on Tillamook Bay to Rattlesnake Butte northwest of Junction City to Chankawan southeast of Stayton.

"What is represented on this map is a wide variety of lands," Reibach said. "Conservation lands, timber lands, forest lands and some development and commercial real estate."

Lands Department Manager Jan Michael Looking Wolf Reibach briefed the membership on Tribal land holdings during the Sunday, Jan. 5, General Council meeting held in the Community Center.

Ronde Reservation Act in 1988, the Tribe has added 6,053 acres to its land holdings. It now possesses about 25 percent of the land total granted as the original Reservation in 1857.

Reibach also gave an overview of his department, which only includes four people including himself.

After his approximately 18-minute presentation, Reibach fielded three questions from the audience.

In other action, it was announced that the 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 2, General Council meeting will be held at the Monarch Hotel, 12566 S.E. 93rd Ave., Clackamas, off of Interstate 205.

Door prize winners were Tracie Meyer, Raymond Petite, Kathie Levine, Robert Parazoo and Cherie Butler, $50 each; and Mae Townsend, Bob Duncan and Corina Limon, $100 each. In addition, Youth Council member Benjamin Powley won a fishing pole donated by Tribal Elder Victor Lomboy.

It also was announced that Julie Duncan, Cherie Butler, Virginia Kimsey-Roof and Serena Layman were elected to the four open seats on the Elders Committee.

Reibach also opened the meeting with cultural drumming and singing.

The entire General Council meeting can be viewed by visiting the Tribal government's website at www.grandronde.org and clicking on the Government tab and then Videos. ■

Tribal Council approves program agreements for conservation properties

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

Tribal Council approved 10year agreements with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service's Partners Program that will help the Tribe manage four of its conservation properties along the banks of the North Santiam River during its Wednesday, Jan. 8, meeting.

The agreements affect the Chahalpam 1, 2 and 3 properties, which are a combined 462 acres, and the 425-acre Chankawan property.

Fish and Wildlife Program Manager Kelly Dirksen said during the Tuesday, Jan. 7, Legislative Action Committee meeting that the Partners Program provides mostly technical assistance and requires that the Tribe keep properties in their current habitat state after receiving federal assistance for 10 years or run the risk having to repay the federal government for its work.

"Since we are managing these properties in perpetuity, that shouldn't be a problem," Dirksen said.

Dirksen added the Tribe's conservation property in Lane County—the 289.5-acre Rattlesnake Butte site—has benefitted from being in the Partners Program.

The program works with landowners to conserve, protect and enhance fish and wildlife and their habitats. In the Willamette Valley, it focuses on restoring oak woodland, savanna, grassland, riparian areas, wetlands and wet prairie habitats. The Tribe's four conservation properties are within the program's Willamette Valley Focus Area.

Tribal Council re-appoints four to be Community Fund trustees

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

In its final meeting of 2019 held at the unusual time of 11 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31, because Christmas and New Year's Day fell on Wednesdays, Tribal Council re-appointed four members to the Spirit Mountain Community Fund Board of Trustees.

The board oversees the Tribe's philanthropic entity, which has awarded almost $83 million in charitable grants since it was started in 1997.

Tribal Council re-appointed Tribal Council members Kathleen George, Denise Harvey and Jack Giffen Jr. to the board, as well as Spirit Mountain Casino Facilities Manager Ron Reibach.

The terms run through September 2021. George is a former director of the Community Fund, which is now managed by Tribal member Michael Cherry.

In other action, Tribal Council:

- Approved the agenda for the Sunday, Jan. 5, General Council meeting held in the Community Center. The Lands Department made the program report and Elders Committee election results were announced;
- Approved applying for an Oregon Youth Corps grant not to exceed $13,000. The Tribe has received the grant for more than 20 years to help fund the summer youth crew program at Natural Resources;

- Approved a first reading of the new Government Administration Ordinance, which would update and replace the Government Purpose, Government Organization and Procedures and Program Authorization and Evaluation ordinances. The three ordinances have not been updated since 1994:
- Approved a confidentiality agreement between the Tribes that are represented on the Portland Harbor Trustee Council;
- And approved the enrollment of two infants into the Tribe because they meet the enrollment requirements outlined in the Tribal Constitution and Enrollment Ordinance.

Also included in the Dec. 31 Tribal Council packet was an approved staff directive allowing Tribal Council staff to help with administrative work for the Salmonberry Trail Intergovernmental Agreement and board. The in-kind contribution will reduce the Tribe's $3,000 annual funding commitment and not exceed 85 hours a year.

The entire meeting can be viewed by visiting the Tribal government's website at www. grandronde.org and clicking on the Government tab and then Videos. ■

Conservation District seeking West Valley input

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation District and the Yamhill Soil and Water Conservation District are holding two Local Work Group meetings in February and March to bring together farmers, ranchers, state and federal agencies, and agriculture and conservation organizations to have a roundtable discussion to determine natural resource priorities and opportunities to invest collaboratively in Yamhill County.

"I'm really trying to reach out to local Tribal members and west Yamhill County landowners who have agricultural or forestry operations and solicit input from them," said District Conservationist Thomas Hoskins.

The meetings will be held from 10 a.m. to noon Wednesday, Feb. 12, at Miller Woods, 15580 N.W. Orchard View Road, McMinnville, and 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, March 12, at the West Valley Fire District, 825 N.E. Main St., Willamina.

The local Conservation District office oversees Farm Bill grants to perform irrigation improvements, plant cover crops and do forest health and wildfire prevention, among other projects.

On Nov. 26, the Tribe asked Leighton to rule on the case. In a post on its Facebook page, the Tribe asked people to bring drums, prayers and voices to support the Tribe's cause.

whether the Department of the Interior can ban Tribes from re-petitioning for recognition and whether the department erred when it said that the Tribe had to be federally recognized to be beneficiaries of funds awarded to Chinook descendants for the land taken from the Tribe in the 19th century.

About 60 people attended the rally and represented, in addition to Grand Ronde, the Duwamish and Cowlitz Tribes as well.

Leighton said that he is retiring from the federal bench in August and wants to resolve some of the issues in the case before a new judge takes over.

No decision was handed down during the Jan. 6 hearing. ■

SMOKE SIGNALS

'I've always known who I was'

nookan origin of death myth.

Beginning Thursday, Jan. 23, and running through Sunday, Feb. 2, in Park City, Utah, the Sundance Film Festival attracts filmmakers from all over the world and includes full-length features and short films; series and episodes; and showcases emerging media forms. Since 1978, hundreds of films featured at the festival have gained critical acclaim.

"małni" is produced by Sky Hopinka, 35, a language teacher and video artist who lives in Vancouver, British Columbia. He collaborated with Mercier, the Tribe's Cultural Resources specialist, for the past three years. Scenes were filmed during Canoe Journey 2018, as well as at different areas in Grand Ronde and the Tribe's ancestral homelands, the Oregon Coast, and on the Washington and Oregon sides of the Columbia River.

"This is an experimental film and there are many aspects I'm hoping the audience will take away," Hopinka says. "I'm hoping they take a different look at Native culture and the relationship of myth and language. It's our way of opening up the possibilities of what Indigenous art and cinema can look like."

Hopinka, a Ho-Chunk National and descendant of the Pechanga Band of Luiseño Indians, is a fluent Chinuk Wawa speaker who helped teach Mercier the language while a student at Portland State University 10 years ago. He grew up in Ferndale, Wash., and spent several years living in the Portland area.

"I've always known who I was," Hopinka said in an interview with Filmmaker magazine. "It's always been a part of my life."

Hopinka's early films feature the reawakening of and interest in Indigenous language and filmmaking. He undertook the projects to "feel like we had control over what we were doing and the films we were making."

Hopinka works as an associate professor of film, video and animation at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, British Columbia, and his video work centers around "personal positions of homeland and landscape, designs of language and facets of culture continued within, and the play between the accessibility of the known and unknowable," according to his website.

Sky Hopinka

As a 2018-19 Radcliffe-Harvard Film Study Center Fellow, Hopinka worked on post-production for the film. He has had a number of shorter films featured at Sundance, ImagineNATIVE Media + Arts Festival, Projections at the New York Film Festival, Toronto International Film Festival's Wavelengths and others.

This isn't Hopinka or Mercier's first collaboration. Several years ago, they worked together on a short film called "huyi huyi," which means "trade" in Chinuk Wawa.

"This is a follow-up to that," Mercier says. "I'm really excited about it. This isn't something I ever thought I would be a part of. It's really cool how he is changing the narrative in Native film and telling our story in a different way. He is on the leading edge of Native cinema."

During a screening of the film in Grand Ronde three months ago, Mercier said that even those who were not well versed in Tribal culture, language and storytelling had positive responses after seeing it.

"People had a lot to say about this," Mercier says. "It gets at the heart of our people's identity by putting it into visual form. It is modern myth telling. If our ancestors had access to this technology, they probably would have used it to tell a story."

Native Americans have a long history of being exploited and stereotyped when it comes to filmmaking, but that is changing.

"This is good exposure for our community," Mercier says. "We're a positive example to many Tribes with our progressiveness, and this is another aspect that fits into that."

Tribal Council member Denise Harvey will attend the Film Festival to represent the Tribe at the screening.

Hopinka isn't sure if the film will be released for distribution, but he plans on holding screenings in Portland and Grand Ronde in the future.

To watch a trailer for the 80-minute documentary or check a calendar of upcoming screenings, visit www.skyhopinka.com. ■

we get these numbers up. I've made it a personal goal of mine."

Dugger has been working since the summer to streamline the process. She formed a committee with representatives from different Tribal government departments who meet monthly. The group recently had the daunting task of sending out census reminder fliers to 3,750 Grand Ronde Tribal families living in the United States. With the help of census employees in Salem and Grand Ronde TERO workers, they were able to accomplish the task in just one day.

"One of the challenging parts is the funding," Dugger says. "Thankfully, we have had different Tribal departments give out funds and resources to get this done. Tribal Council is 100 percent behind the effort as well."

Another avenue Dugger is utilizing to increase awareness is "lobby stands," which will be located in different areas on the Tribal campus, and will include snippets of information about the upcoming census. She's also created a Facebook page and website with census details.

The next task is to recruit Native American census takers who are known in the community.

"During the 2010 census, there were no recognizable people from our community to take the information, so when the workers showed up at people's homes, they were pretty much stonewalled," Dugger says. "Another thing we want to do is let people in housing know that the information they provide

Housing Department Administrative Program Manager Joan Dugger talks about the Tribe's plan for the upcoming census on Monday, Jan. 6. Dugger stressed the importance of an accurate count and talked about employment opportunities that will become available.

will be completely confidential. So if they are worried that someone who is not on the lease will get them in trouble, there is no concern because we are forbidden to have that information. It is a firewall we cannot breach."

Tribal residents living in the Grand Ronde or Portland areas who are interested in becoming census takers are encouraged to contact Dugger. She notes that the job is a good fit for many because employees set their own hours, pay begins at $18 per hour, and the money they earn will not be counted toward any assistance they currently receive.

"It is basically a free pass and really helpful if you need extra income," Dugger says. "There are some who may be intimidated by the federal background check, but that should not be a deterrent because as long as applicants are honest about their history, they will likely give you a pass in many circumstances."

She adds that census taker jobs do require the applicant have a driver's license, but the government reimburses for mileage at the federal rate of 57 cents per mile.

For those who do not want to receive a knock on their door by a census taker, there are other ways to respond. For the first time, the census will be available online. Other options are to call or use mail delivery to return the questionnaire. Residents can begin this process when the census starts on Wednesday, April 1.

"It is very important to participate in the census," Dugger says. "Many programs the Tribe has are grant funded and these are developed off census numbers. Every Tribal response we get is worth approximately $3,200. That makes a huge difference and funds our grant-driven programs."

To help ensure participation is at the highest levels, Education Manager Angela Fasana applied for and received a $2,000 grant through United Way to purchase laptops and iPads to help encourage census participation online for those who lack home computer access.

Grand Ronde was one of 25 Tribal applicants out of 500 that received the grant. The laptops and iPad will be available at the Tribal Library later this year for anyone who needs to research information.

"We'll be working through the summer to gather accurate data and we're hoping it will go smoothly," Dugger says. "We're here and willing to help anyone with a need. We're really invested in this going well."

The U.S. Constitution requires that the federal government conduct a census every 10 years to determine how many people are living in the United States and a controversial Trump administration proposal to include a citizenship question on this year's census form was struck down by a federal court ruling.

Public Notice

Indian Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) Program
Community Development Statement
Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde
Grand Ronde Community Service Center Addition Project

The Tribe held a 2019 Tribal community input meeting in June and many Tribal programs were displayed at open house tables, including Social Services and the Domestic Violence program, and comments and suggestions for the Housing and Urban Development - Indian Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) program were taken. Following HUD's Notice of Funding Availability in November, the Tribe solicited for ICDBG project suggestions from all Tribal managers. This was followed by discussions and updates with the General Manager and Tribal Council. Council reviewed several eligible ICDBG project suggestions and construction of an addition to the Community Service Center in support of the Domestic Violence program received the most support.

ICDBG is a competitive grant program whose funds are intended to meet an essential community development need and to benefit the needlest segment of the population. The proposed construction of this addition to the Community Service Center will primarily serve women and children from low-moderate income households.

The Tribe's Community Service Center was initially built in 1991 and was added on to for the Children Family Services Program in 2010. Client needs have continued to grow with domestic violence among the most recent additions. The proposed project will construct a 2,000-square-foot building addition with staff offices, small meeting rooms for client services, and associated site work. The proposed development cost in support of the Domestic Violence program is $1 million and would be covered by $750,000 from this ICDBG grant and $250,000 from eligible local matching funds. Building operation and maintenance costs are estimated at $18,000 a year.

To comment on the proposed application, please contact Kim Rogers, Planning & Grants Development manager, at 503-879-2250 or send your comments to him at 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, OR 97347. Written comments should be provided by 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 21, 2020.

Council will review comments collected to date at its Jan. 21, 2020, Legislative Action Committee meeting and again at its Jan. 22, 2020, Council meeting at which time Council will consider authorizing this application. Council also will consider comments provided by Grand Ronde community members in determining whether to make any modifications to the application. The resulting application will be available for review.

The ICDBG grant application is due on Feb. 3, 2020.

DONATIONS REQUESTED
Grand Ronde Language Education Building Project

Funding obtained to date: HUD ICDBG $500,000 HUD IHBG $167,000

> BIA $70,000 $737,000

The Tribe is pursuing a new language building on the Tribal campus. While our current grant funding is for K-4, a larger building could serve both younger and older children. The new building would allow the Tribe to move the Lilu preschool class out of the rented modular classroom and give them room for more children.

The Tribe is reaching out to different foundations to help fund this endeavor. Foundations may contribute to the project but they want to see local community participation before they do. The Tribe would love to show these foundations how much the tribal community supports this effort through its willingness to donate. Please consider donating $1, $5, $10 or $20 to help give our students the space and the classrooms that they need. While a dollar here and there adds up, it also gives us a list of people who have donated and helps demonstrate our community support for the project.

Donations can be made by sending a check to the Tribe's Finance Department. The check should be made out to the "Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde Tribe" with "for Language Bldg" specified on the notes line. Donations can be mailed to the Finance Department, Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, OR 97347. For more information please call Angela Fasana, Education Department manager, at 503-879-2284.

Police Department has non-emergency text line

The Grand Ronde Tribal Police Department has created a non-emergency text line at 541-921-2927.

"Even though this is mostly designed for children, I don't want adults thinking that they can't use it as well. If you have a non-emergency situation or question, feel free to contact my officer via text through this line," said Grand Ronde Tribal Police Chief Jake McKnight. "When one of my officers receives the text, they will call you back when they have time."

McKnight said that emergency situations still require calling 911. For more information, contact McKnight at 503-879-1474. ■

Book review: "Elevation" by Stephen King.

In this short story, Scott Casey has developed a peculiar condition. Although his appearance has not changed, he is steadily losing weight with no known cause. He has also developed the energy and vigor of his younger self. No matter how much he eats the weight won't stop coming off.

Realizing his time is running out, Scott decides to do a good deed for his new neighbors by trying to make their town, Castle Rock, more welcoming and accepting of them.

This book is not your typical dark and frightening Stephen King novel. It is a sweet, uplifting tale with a touch of sadness. Folks who are not into King's horror stories should pick this one up. This book is only 160 pages — a short quick read — which is a break from King's unusually large novels. — Reviewed by Crystal Bigelow

Donations: A special thank you to Jiy Two-Feathers Williams, Judith Hay, Perri McDaniel, Joe Kirk, Deborah Marrington, Curtis Wright and others for their contributions to the Tribal Library. We appreciate it.

Reminder: Donated items must be clean and in good condition.

Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) Volunteers

What is a CASA volunteer?

Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASAs) volunteer to advocate for an abused or neglected child in their local community. The specially trained volunteers are appointed by local courts to advocate for the best interests of children who have experienced abuse or neglect. CASA volunteers add a layer of stability to children's lives. CASAs can stay with their client through the duration of their dependency case adding a sense of certainty for children when nothing else in their life is certain. The first CASA program was created in 1976 because a judge needed an advocate who could see the situation from the eyes of the child and make recommendations with an adult perspective. CASA volunteers advocate for the best interests of their child. They also pay attention to the child's interests, their lives and are there with their child every step of the way.

What are the benefits for children who have a CASA?

Children do better in school, they spend less time in foster care and they reach stability and permanency faster.

What do I have to do?

CASA volunteers receive about 40 hours of in-depth training and are sworn in by a judge before being assigned a case. To ensure the integrity of the CASA program, the volunteer goes through a background check, personal interview and reference checks. The average case assignment is around two years. The number of hours per month ranges from 10 to 15 hours for writing reports, investigating and meeting with their client.

Who can apply?

- At least 21 years of age
- \bullet Successfully complete an application and pass a screening process
- Demonstrate the capability to effectively advocate for a child or children
- Have not been convicted of a felony and have no criminal or civil record or history with child protective services
- Demonstrate knowledge of Tribal history, culture and awareness of Tribal events, ceremonies and celebrations
