Casino float 'Returning to Our Roots' depicts camas harvesting

ORTLAND — For the first time since June 2019, a Spirit Mountain Casino float trundled out of Veterans Memorial Coliseum during the return of the Grand Floral Parade on Saturday, June 11.

The parade was canceled, like so many other events, in 2020 and '21 because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The casino's float, "Returning to Our Roots," featured a Native girl wearing dentalium earrings and harvesting camas bulbs. On her back was a large gathering basket made of corn husks that had been christened with real camas seeds. On the rear of the float were a no Public Relations Administrator Jocelyn Huffman said the design of the float was a collaboration with Cultural Resources Department employees Bobby Mercier and Travis Stewart, who provided 19th-century photos of Native women gathering camas.

However, Huffman said, the casino wanted the float to depict a modern woman to reinforce the fact that Grand Ronde Tribal members are still here.

Pacific lamprey harvest season underway

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife set the Pacific lamprey harvest season from June 1 through July 31 from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fridays through Mondays. Harvesting is not allowed Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

Harvesting is confined to the east side of Willamette Falls and does not include the horseshoe area at the peak of the falls. In addition, harvesters should avoid the lamprey ramps that help lamprey make it over the falls that have been installed.

Gear is restricted to hand or hand-powered tools only and a permit is required. Tribal members are allowed to use their Tribal enrollment card in lieu of a state-issued permit.

Tribal members can harvest for distribution to other Tribal members, but it must be done without charge. Commercial sale of lamprey and the use of lamprey as bait is prohibited.

Catches must be recorded on an ODFW harvest card available from the Tribe's Natural Resources Department, 47010 S.W. Hebo Road, or by contacting the Clackamas ODFW office at 17330 S.E. Evelyn St. Harvest cards must be returned by Aug. 31.

Due to the water being unseasonably high, fishers should check the forecast before attempting to harvest lamprey.

Tribal members planning to harvest lamprey should contact the Natural Resources Department for a packet at 503-879-2424. ■

PROBATE ORDINANCE OPEN FOR COMMENT

Tribal Council is considering adopting a Probate Ordinance. The proposed ordinance was given a First Reading at the June 1, 2022, Tribal Council meeting.

Tribal Council has determined that it is in the best interest of the Tribe to exercise its powers of self-governance as a sovereign nation by establishing a process for transfer of Tribal member property upon their deaths and providing a means to probate estates in Tribal Court. The purpose of this ordinance is to encourage Tribal members to plan for the transfer of their property upon their deaths and to authorize the Tribal Court to hear and determine probate proceedings to simplify the probate process for surviving family members.

Tribal Council invites comments on the proposed Probate Ordinance. For a copy of the proposed ordinance, please contact the Tribal Attorney's Office at 503-879-4664. Please send your comments to the Tribal Attorney's Office, 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, Oregon 97347 or by e-mail to legal@grandronde.org.

Comments must be received by July 15, 2022. ■

Food Bank news

The Grand Ronde Food Bank – iskam məkhmək haws – is operated by Marion-Polk Food Share, which has been leading the fight to end hunger since 1987 because no one should be hungry.

Recipients of SNAP, TANF, SSI or LIHEAP assistance automatically qualify for assistance at the Grand Ronde Food Bank, 9675 Grand Ronde Road. No one will be turned away in need of a food box.

"We believe that everyone deserves to have enough to eat," Food Bank Coordinator Francene Ambrose says. "You are welcome to get a food box at each of our regular weekly distributions. No one will be turned away in need of a food box."

The Food Bank will hold June food box distributions from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays. In addition, there is a light food box (mostly bread and produce) distribution from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesdays.

People must check in 15 minutes before closing to receive a food box on both days. If you need immediate assistance, call 211 or visit 211info.org.

Those who are unable to pick up a food box can fill out an authorized representative form and that designated person can pick up a food box on your behalf. The authorization is good for one year.

The Food Bank continues to seek volunteers to help with repacking food, putting food on the shelves, handing out food boxes, end-of-month inventory and picking up food donations at area stores.

Call to ensure someone is available to assist. People also can sign up for a monthly e-mail for the Food Bank calendar and events, as well as follow the Food Bank on Facebook.

The Food Bank is an equal opportunity provider.

2017 – An emotional Reyn Leno announced during a Tribal Council meeting that he would not seek re-election in 2017, ending 21 years of service on Tribal Council. Leno said he would be on a plane to Hawaii with his children and grandchildren during Tribal Council nominations. His 21 years on council were the most of any Tribal member who had been elected since 1983's Restoration. "When I think of being on council, I always think you are only one of nine up here. If anybody thinks you don't make a mistake up here, you're kidding (yourself)."

2012 – The Willamette Heritage Center and the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde won the 2012 Award of Merit from the Leadership in History program of the American Association of State and Local History for its exhibit "Grand Ronde Canoe Journey." David Lewis, manager of the Tribe's Cultural Resources Department, said the award "means we are doing good work, and the local community is beginning to recognize and understand the importance of the cultural work occurring."

2007 – The old Porter House, built in the 1920s, was torn down to make way for the new Elders Activity Center. The house served as a home, as the Tribe's alcohol and drug rehabilitation center, an AA meeting hall and most recently as an office for the workers building the Elder foster care homes nearby.

2002 – Smoke Signals hired staff writer Ron Karten to work at the Tribal newspaper. Karten hailed from New York and was a long-time freelance writer. He said the best part of his job was making connections. "I really like my work," he said. "I really like talking to people and writing about people. I'm just floored by the people I meet (here). Everybody's been wonderful."

1997 – Spirit Mountain Casino's float "Mountain Joy," which depicted a bobcat playing with a butterfly, won first place for the second year in a row at Portland's Rose Festival Grand Floral Parade. The theme of the festival was "Having Fun," and Tribal members Jackie Provost, Emma Leno and Miranda Provost represented the Tribe while riding on the float during the parade.

1992 – Oregon Rep. Les AuCoin's wife, Susan, and her daughter, Stacy, toured Nanitch Sahallie, the Tribe's youth residential drug and alcohol treatment center in Keizer. It was reported that the AuCoin family was very interested in the Tribe's dedication in helping Native Americans afflicted with chemical dependency and would share what they had learned.

1987 – Tribal member Tamara Kennedy was one of the first Grand Ronde Tribal members to graduate from Chemawa Indian School since the Tribe was terminated in 1954. She said the best thing about attending the school was meeting students from different Tribes, and during her time there she played softball, basketball and participated in a youth mentorship program.

Community Fund surpasses $89 million mark in giving

By Danielle Harrison

Smoke Signals assistant editor/staff writer

Spirit Mountain Community Fund awarded $724,999 in grants on Wednesday, June 8, during a 70-minute virtual check presentation event, bringing the Grand Ronde Tribe's philanthropic giving since 1997 to more than $89 million.

The Community Fund receives 6 percent of proceeds from Spirit Mountain Casino and awards that money to nonprofits in 11 northwest Oregon counties to fund efforts in the areas of arts and culture, environmental preservation, education, health, historic preservation and public safety, and to the nine federally recognized Tribes in Oregon under a Tribal Grants program.

The Community Fund was created as part of the Tribe's gaming compact with the state of Oregon. It is supervised by an eight-member Board of Trustees that includes Tribal Council members Denise Harvey, Jack Giffen Jr. and Michael Cherry, who is also a former Community Fund director.

The event was the sixth virtual check presentation held by the Community Fund since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic in March 2020. It opened with a prayer and flute song from Tribal Lands Manager Jan Michael Looking Wolf Reibach.

Executive Director Angie Sears and Board of Trustees Chairman Chip Lazenby welcomed virtual attendees.

"I miss the in-person meetings we had and hopefully we can get together soon," Lazenby said. "This is the 25th year Spirit Mountain Community Fund has been in existence and it has given away close to $90 million. It's been a joy to learn of all the amazing work the nonprofits in our local communities have done. In a lot of ways, our work is the easy part. You have your feet on the ground and are doing the hard work."

Sears said that this is a way to give thanks and celebrate the organizations' achievements.

"While we look forward to the in-person presentations, we know we will be together again," she said. "Thanks for all you do and for being here today."

Sears also introduced Community Fund employees — Grants Coordinator Jesse Knight, Program Coordinator Angela Schlappie and Administrative Assistant Marissa Leno.

Next, the approximately 37 people who attended watched a video on the history of the Tribe and then Knight and Schlappie announced the grant awards.

Due to the virtual format, Knight and Schlappie gave every organization representative the opportunity to briefly speak about their programs.

During the check distribution portion, the Community Fund awarded seven small grants worth $47,840

The two-mile parade route left Memorial Coliseum north on Broadway and then east on Weidler before heading south on Martin Luther King Boulevard. It then went east on Lloyd Boulevard before wrapping up at the disband area at the Lloyd Center parking lot.

After leaving the float, Tribal Royalty members distributed packets of camas seeds to audience members in celebration of Spirit Mountain Casino's 25th anniversary of participating in the Grand Floral Parade.

"I think the float is outstanding," said Tribal Council member Michael Cherry. "It's amazing and I am so proud of it. Look at all of the beautiful flowers. I particularly love the earrings. They're just so real.

"I love the theme of returning to our roots. This really is the core of who were are as Native American people and the basket and the camas and bringing all of that back to our land is part of this idea of healing that we have been focusing on ... healing and restoration. I love it."

On Wednesday and Thursday, June 8-9, Tribal volunteers, including Veronica Gaston, descended on Funtastic Traveling Shows in east Portland to finish decorating the casino's float.

The Grand Floral Parade is the second largest floral parade in the United States. This was the 12th year of Spirit Mountain Casino as the presenting sponsor.

Before the start of the parade, Spirit Mountain Community Fund Program Coordinator Angela Schlappie and Cherry awarded a $100,000 check to the Center for Hope and Safety of Salem before the news cameras of KPTV.

The money will fund Hope Plaza, which will build housing for survivors of domestic violence and sex trafficking, said Center for Hope and Safety Executive Director Jayne Downing.

Schlappie said it was the fifth grant totaling $270,741 that the Community Fund has awarded to Center for Hope and Safety.

Tribal Council OKs license that will improve forest fire detection

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde will soon have two cameras with a combined 360-degree view mounted on the 200-foot North Buswell cell phone tower across from Spirit Mountain Casino that will provide around-the-clock monitoring for potential forest fires on Reservation lands.

Tribal Council approved a fiveyear licensing agreement with Pano AI of San Francisco to install the cameras that are programmed to detect smoke and alert fire authorities to check to see if a fire has started during its Wednesday, June 1, meeting.

In lieu of payment from Pano, the Tribe will receive 20 licenses that will give 20 staff members viewing access to the two cameras.

"While this system could be a powerful tool to keep an eve on our lands, they're similar to a smoke detector in the sense they can alert us to danger," a Tribal Lands Department staff report states. "It's still dependent on staff and fire dispatch to follow up on and extinguish the fire as needed."

Pano AI started in 2020, inspired by the spike in major forest fires occurring worldwide. It's artificial intelligence cameras detect smoke and send an alert back to a 24/7 Pano AI intelligence center, where people analyze the data and determine if it's a fire incident and notify the appropriate fire department.

Depending on various factors, such as weather and topography, the cameras can monitor anywhere from 10 to 20 miles in the distance.

The company currently has camera stations across Colorado, California, Oregon and Montana.

The Lands Department staff report says Pano AI is also willing to explore options for placing cameras near other Tribal properties, such as the conservation properties of Chahalpam, Chankawan and Rattlesnake Butte, and the Tillamook

"If given the go-ahead, the Tribe would have another tool in our toolbox to protect one of our largest assets, our forestlands," the report says.

Tribal Council approval authorizes Tribal Lands Manager Jan Reibach to execute the licensing agreement with the company.

In other action, Tribal Council:

· Approved applying for a $2 million Indian Health Service Small Ambulatory Program grant that would be used to expand the Great Circle Recovery medication-assisted treatment opioid clinic in Salem by renovating the 5,293-square-foot second floor into usable space;

• Reappointed Ralph Baker and Steve Nuttall to serve on the Grand Ronde Gaming Commission with terms expiring in June 2025. Tribal Council also approved a new stipend policy for Gaming Commission members that requires them to attend at least one of the monthly meetings to receive the stipend;

·Approved the enrollment of three infants into the Tribe because they meet the requirements outlined in the Enrollment Ordinance and Tribal Constitution;

·Approved blood quantum adjustments for 14 Tribal members;

 Approved applying for a $154,000 U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service 2022 Tribal Wildlife grant that would remove 20 acres of a blighted hazelnut orchard on the Takilth conservation property and return it to riparian hardwood and flood plain forest. Takilth is located in the flood plain of Mill Creek;

· Approved the Tribe working with the Long Tom Watershed Council of Lane County on a project to return fire as a forest management tool in the Willamette Valley. The Watershed Council received a $130,000 grant to work on the project. The Tribe's Rattlesnake Butte conservation property northwest of Junction City is within the Long Tom watershed;

 Approved a modification to the Tribe's ceremonial hunt season that will protect pregnant blacktail deer by not allowing them to be hunted between January and June in the hopes of countering a drop in the local deer population;

· And sent a new proposed Probate Ordinance out for a first reading, which will allow Tribal members 30 days to comment. The new ordinance seeks to encourage Tribal members to plan for the transfer of their property upon their deaths and authorizes Tribal Court to hear and determine probate proceedings to simplify the process for surviving family members. Tribal Council Chairwoman Cheryle A. Kennedy said during the Tuesday, May 31, Legislative Action Committee meeting that filing probate cases in Tribal Court would be voluntary on the part of surviving family members.

Mural expected to be completed by end of June

Black Ink Coffee facing McLoughlin Boulevard tells the story of how Coyote and Meadowlark created Willamette Falls. Other elements of the mural include a heron, Tribal dancer, a welcoming pole, longhouse, eels and a mountain.

A canoe framing one of the bookstore's windows features two Tribal members, who were painted by Nakoa and Kyoni Mercier, Krehbiel's niece and nephew. There is also an illustration of a person fishing off a platform outside their home. These portions are meant to be interactive, Krehbiel says, so that visitors to the coffee shop can envision themselves sitting in the canoe, which is painted on each side of a large window, or fishing off the platform, located next to the back door of the business.

"Just seeing our art and creation come together is great." Krehbiel says. "Once we started really seeing it unfold, it was sweet. If anything else, I hope in 10 years we can continue to put our hands on this and help out. This will be the sign to our ancestors that we didn't forget them because it shows our people were living here."

A mountain with steps along the way completes the top of the mural, representing the journey people make to reach their goals.

"I thought it would be good to have a mountain along with the falls," Krehbiel says.

Although he's enjoyed the process of creating the mural, it's been a challenge painting the upper portions, especially on a textured surface that measures 20 feet tall.

"I'm actually scared of heights,"

Tribal member Brian Krehbiel shows part of the mural he was commissioned to paint on the side of the White Rabbit Books & Black Ink Coffee building where visitors can simulate fishing off the Tribal platform in Oregon City on Thursday, June 9. The mural is across from the Blue Heron site and is intended to be a mirror of Willamette Falls.

Krehbiel confesses as traffic whizzes by. "I'm up on a lift and it moves a lot so I'm trying not to roll (the paint) too far out from where I'm standing."

However, he seldom lets doubts determine his course of action.

"They asked me to create a mural and so I said, 'Sure, why not? I'll try anything once," he says. "Don't let anyone tell you that you can't do something. Just get at it and try it."

Krehbiel has been putting in eight-hour days working on the mural, weather permitting, and is expecting to complete it this month. It will the first by an Indigenous artist as a part of Oregon City's public art program. It is paid for with an $18,690 Metro Enhancement grant. There were also in-kind donations from Sherwin Williams, Party Factory Events and Pioneer Rental.

White Rabbit owner Danielle Walsh says that her business tries to support local artists and felt it was important to have the perspective of a Grand Ronde artist for this piece, especially as it faces Tribal property and the falls.

"We are interested in representation — each person with a historical or current connection to this place and time being able to see themselves at White Rabbit Books & Black Ink Coffee, whether through vendors we support, books on our shelves and/or artwork," she says. "We are imperfect in our practice, but are striving to understand, respect and amplify voices every day. We welcome the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde as our new neighbor, and hope the mural (will) be a reflection of that, as well as bringing voices to the mural program that have been underrepresented until now."

She adds that Krehbiel's passion for cultural traditions is "infectious."

Working with Brian has brought us so much joy," Walsh says. "He is creative, kind and intuitive. ... May all people feel as welcome as we do when we approach the mural."

Krehbiel, a Willamina resident, owns Agency Creek Expressions and has been an artist for several years. In an earlier Smoke Signals interview, he said he has dedicated himself to learning traditional skills and arts for much of his life, both to help strengthen his connection to the Tribe and to form his own cultural identity.

His artwork is featured at the entrance to the Health & Wellness Clinic, in the atrium inside and also in the Behavioral Health building at the Grand Ronde Tribal campus.

Krehbiel grew up at the base of Spirit Mountain and has lived in Grand Ronde and Willamina for most of his life. He attended schools in Willamina as well as Noli Indian School near Palm Springs, Calif.

Krehbiel is the son of Tribal Elder Arlettia Krehbiel and Tim Krehbiel, and grandson of Hugo and Hazel Krehbiel, and Arthilia (Grand Ronde) and Elton Clark. He and his partner, Ali Holsclaw, welcomed a son in 2018, Tribal member Alder Moon and a daughter, Hazel, in 2021. Krehbiel has two older children, Tribal members Kailiyah, 20, and Red Sky Clawson, 13. ■

Watchlist: 'To stop uncontrollable wildfires in California, look to this once-outlawed Indigenous practice'

(Editor's note: It is estimated that there are approximately 149 billion videos on YouTube, and the number continues to grow. Grand Ronde Tribal member and Social Media/Digital Journalist Kamiah Koch sifts through those myriad videos twice a month to recommend a worthwhile Indigenous video to watch. Follow her bimonthly recommendations and enjoy!)

By Kamiah Koch

Social media/digital journalist

Summer is almost upon us, which means wildfire season is looming. The Grand Ronde Tribe's Silviculture and Fire Protection programs work throughout the year to prevent extensive widlfires. They do so through a traditional practice called "prescribed burns."

Or, as a University of California's Fig. 1 video calls them, "cultural burns"

Fig. 1 is the university's YouTube channel where experts answer various questions. This video was published in April 2022 and explains the history of cultural burns and why they work.

The video starts by comparing two photos of Yosemite Valley from 1872 and 2020. The mountains remain the same, but changes in the tree density and foliage below are obvious. Instead of thick forests we see today, the valley once had meadows and trees spread apart.

"The settlers assumed that this is just what nature looked like on its own," the narrator of the video says. "But really they had walked into a garden that was thousands of years old and sustained by Native Americans."

The video explains that fire is actually part of a healthy ecosystem. It "renews" the land by removing overgrown vegetation and releases new seeds, making room for new plants to grow.

However, as many aspects of Tribal history goes, colonization attempted to exterminate this practice.

The narrator states that by 1770, Spanish missionaries prohibited prescribed burns and when Tribes were forcefully removed from their homelands in the 1850s, burns in California were outlawed.

Wildfires became rampant, leading to the smoky summers we have Luckily, by 1970, the National Park Service realized its mistake and looked to the knowledge of Indigenous Tribes.

Ron Goode, chair of the North Fork Mono Tribe, is shown practicing cultural burns in California. The National Park Service now practices low-intensity fires.

"Your primary focus is 'I'm burning for acreage and to reduce fuel load.' That's exactly what you do," Goode says. "But then your land is not restored."

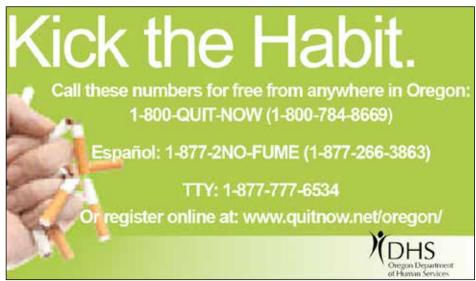

Goode says the National Park Service's burn and leave practice isn't fulfilling engagement with the land. Native American traditions with cultural burns also involve raking the ashes back into the soil to start the process all over again.

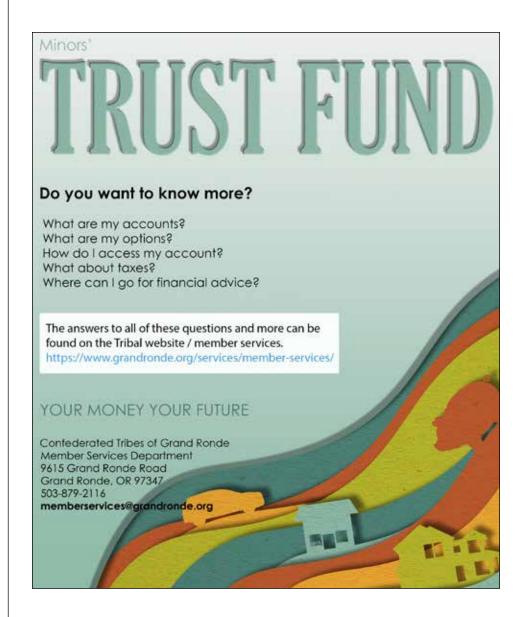

To see the rest of "To stop uncontrollable wildfires in California, look to this once-outlawed Indigenous practice" video you can go to www.youtube.com/watch?v=i6kKwsA1B3U or find the video linked in the Smoke Signals Watchlist playlist on our YouTube channel.
