General Council briefed on Health & Wellness

By Danielle Harrison
Smoke Signals editor

Health Services Executive Director Kelly Rowe briefed General Council on initiatives her department is pursuing during the Sunday, Jan. 7, hybrid meeting held in Tribal Council chambers and on Zoom. “It is a pleasure and an honor to be here and to talk about health and wellness, what we have done in 2023 and what is to come in 2024,” she said. “I can’t believe it’s been eight years since I started here. Time really flies, it certainly does when you’re having fun, and it’s great that we’re able to make a difference to the membership and bring services and programs that are needed.” Rowe said that Health & Wellness continues to grow, and has recently added a nurse practitioner, psychiatric nurse practitioner and a dentist, with a second one coming in April. The department’s tush lamatsin (good medicine) events have continued to increase in popularity, with the Fall Festival attracting more than 350 people. Additionally, the new public health and vaccination clinic, located next to the Heath & Wellness Center, will be opening in February to provide additional services to the membership including vaccination, a denturist lab, diabetic care, pediatrics, naturopathic care, an indoor-demonstration kitchen and presentation area, and outdoor patio with a kitchen and fish pit. “This is a labor of love and gives us the ability to expand our services,” Rowe said. During her presentation, Rowe shared several other accomplishments of 2023 and goals for 2024, some of which she and the staff have been working toward for years. One of those is to have a financially independent department. “When I came to Health and Wellness in 2015, one of the things we focus on cultural identity, mental health awareness and entrepreneurship. The purpose is to uplift the community, to help keep our Native culture relevant and seen.” The Haven show will feature Mista Chief (Northern Cheyenne), Savelle Tha Native (Chetco/Shasta/Siletz), MzShellz (Cree) and Y.N.G. (Northern Cheyenne), Savelle Tha Native (Chetco/Shasta/Siletz) and Sadie Tasker. The department’s tush lamatsin (good medicine) family event included singing, dancing, drumming, games, a cake walk, raffle prizes and the first 125 youth received a copy of the “Little Acorn” book. Breakfast for dinner was also served. Gabriella Saby, 5, dances during the Pajama Jam held in the Tribal gym. Worthy Amouak, 5, left, and Sadie Tasker, 4, read “Little Acorn” during the Pajama Jam held in the Tribal gym on Thursday, Jan. 11. By Sherron Lumley

Music producer and Grand Ronde Tribal member Adam Sierra is bringing an all-Indigenous reggae and hip-hop show to the Tribe’s ceded homelands on Friday, Jan. 26. Sierra, co-founder of Chalice Row Records, is hosting, “Rebel Music,” Friday, Jan. 26, at The Haven in southeast Portland. “This show is showcasing all Native artists,” Sierra, 39, said. “It’s a reggae and hip-hop performance with some spoken word, and we focus on cultural identity, mental health awareness and entrepreneurship. The purpose is to uplift the community, to help keep our Native culture relevant and seen.” The Haven show will feature Mista Chief (Northern Cheyenne), Savelle Tha Native (Chetco/Shasta/Siletz), MzShellz (Cree) and Y.N.G. Native (Haida/Tsimshian) with special guest DJ D-Rock. Native pop-up restaurant Javelina is providing food for the event. Meanwhile, Sierra is also busy organizing the third annual Oregon Reggae Fest, a three-day event relocating to Stavton from Ashland for the first time this summer. The festival will be held July 26-28, and will bring together a lineup of reggae music, wellness workshops, children’s activities, cultural arts and crafts, and world cuisine. The new location, approximately an hour’s drive from Grand Ronde, brings the venue much closer to where Sierra grew up. He said that he knew at a young age he wanted to be a music producer. It began with a book he read while a student at Sheridan High School. One thing led to another, and Sierra began producing shows while living in Willamina when...

Correction — A story in the Jan. 1 issue of Smoke Signals misidentified the Tribal affiliation of former Hatfield Fellow Shana Radford. Although she was a member of the Nez Perce Tribe during her fellowship, she is now a member of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation in eastern Oregon. Smoke Signals regrets the error.

Prepare for tax season

Help us get your tax documents to you in a timely manner:
It is that time of the year where we in the Finance Department are starting to prepare for tax season.
In an effort to have current information for W2s and 1099s, we are asking everyone who has moved in the last calendar year to update their address.

How to update:
If you are a Tribal member, contact Member Services at memberservices@grandronde.org or 503-879-2116.
If you are an employee, contact Human Resources at compensation._HRIS@grandronde.org or 503-879-2109 and the reception desk will direct your call to the appropriate person. Alternatively, an employee can make any updates in the timesheet module as well.

If you have recently updated your address at the clinic/pharmacy, you will still need to update your information with either Member Services and/or Human Resources. The clinic/pharmacy does not share your private information due to HIPAA regulations.
Remember that even if you have direct deposit you will need to update your address, as W2s and 1099s are mailed.

The Finance Department thanks you in advance for your assistance in making the upcoming tax season go as smoothly as possible.

The deadline for updating addresses has now passed. We cannot guarantee changes after this date. Both W2 and 1099MISC forms will be mailed before the Wednesday, Jan. 31, deadline.

Food Bank news

The Grand Ronde Food Bank – iskam mak’mak haws – is operated by Marion-Polk Food Share, which has been leading the fight to end hunger since 1987 because no one should be hungry.

Recipients of SNAP, TANF, SSI or LIEHP assistance automatically qualify for assistance at the Grand Ronde Food Bank. 9675 Grand Ronde Road. No one will be turned away in need of a food box.

“We believe that everyone deserves to have enough to eat,” Food Bank Coordinator Francene Ambrose says. “You are welcome to get a food box at each of our regular weekly distributions. No one will be turned away in need of a food box.”

The Food Bank will hold January food box distributions from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays. In addition, there is a light food box (mostly bread and produce) distribution from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesdays.

People must check in 15 minutes before closing to receive a food box on both days. If you need immediate assistance, call 211 or visit 211info.org.

Those who are unable to pick up a food box can fill out an authorized representative form and that designated person can pick up a food box on your behalf. The authorization is good for one year.

The Food Bank continues to seek volunteers to help with repacking food, putting food on the shelves, handing out food boxes, end-of-month inventory and picking up food donations at area stores.

Yesteryears is a look back at Tribal history in five-year increments through the pages of Smoke Signals.

2019 – Tribal Council approved a memorandum of understanding with the city of Salem, which is in the area ceded in the Willamette Valley Treaty of 1855. Salem also designated Jan. 22 as Willamette Valley Treaty Commemoration Day. Tribes and bands represented by the signing of the 1855 treaty, ratified two months later, included the Kalapuya, Santiam, Tuatulit, Yamhill, Ahsahchuyuk, Mary’s River (Chelamela), Mohawk, Windolla, Calapooia, Northern Molalla, Santiam Molalla and Clackamas Chinook (Cowewalla, Watlala and Multnomah).

2014 – Tribal Ceded Landa Program Manager Michael Karnosh, Tribal Planner Rick George and Tribal Land and Culture Department Manager Jan Reibach updated the membership on the Tribe’s ceded lands plan at a General Council meeting. The land ceded by the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde in seven treaties signed in the 1850s totaled more than 13 million acres, covering most of western Oregon, parts of southwestern Washington and northern California. The ceded lands plan was a direct result of the 2010 Tribal Strategic Plan, which sought to assert Grand Ronde rights in its ceded lands and educate the public about these lands. The Ceded Lands Program, created by the Tribe in 2007, became part of the Land and Culture Department in 2013.

2009 – Cultural Resources Department Manager and Tribal member David Lewis prepared a 500-page dissertation, “The Termination of the Confederated Tribes of the Grand Ronde of Oregon,” earning a doctorate from University of Oregon. Lewis thanked Tribal Elders on Don Day, Pat Allen, Tribal Council Chairwoman Cheryl A. Kenney and the Tribe’s Education Department for their ongoing support. His journey through higher education spanned 22 years, beginning in 1987. He was named one of the first Tribal members to earn a doctorate.

2004 – Grand Ronde Postmaster Phil Burris, a Cherokee-Chocotaw Tribal member and Navy veteran, took care of 328 post office boxes and two letter carriers who delivered mail to 360 addresses in Grand Ronde. Burris began his Postal Service career in 1981 and planned to stay in Grand Ronde until retirement. He arrived early every morning to raise the U.S. flag and lowered it every night. He even slept at the post office during an ice storm to open it on time the next day.

1999 – Alaska Native Ted Mala was hired in December as the Tribe’s new executive officer. Mala grew up in a northwest Alaskan village and attended boarding schools. He earned a bachelor’s degree in philosophy and a master’s degree in public health from Harvard, becoming a member of the Association of American Indian Physicians. He was a professor and director of the University of Alaska Public Health Institute before coming to Grand Ronde. Burris began his Postal Service career in 1981 and planned to stay in Grand Ronde until retirement. He arrived early every morning to raise the U.S. flag and lowered it every night. He even slept at the post office during an ice storm to open it on time the next day.

1994 – The Tree of Giving, sponsored by the Tribal Social Services Department, and coordinated by Mychal Childers and Aprille Howren, was a “huge success” during its second year. More than 60 Tribal, staff and community members participated to help children with special needs have a Merry Christmas.

1989 – Tribal Council established a Tribal burial fund, which covered Tribal members and their immediate families, and designated council member Merle Holmes to administer the fund. The burial fund would be paid for through Tribal timber revenues.

This year the Tribe saw an increased effort to raise awareness for missing and murdered Indigenous people. A main advocate in the growing awareness efforts is Tribal member Amanda Freeman.

If approved, the four-year award would provide up to $2.6 million for 195 houses within Tribal Reservation lands to receive updated broadband services.

“This grant is primarily a construction grant allowing for new towers and fiber to be installed and will allow us to network with the Native-owned and operated company, Native Network, so that we can ensure its success,” Grants Management Assistant Dana Morfin said during a Legislative Action Committee meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 9.

The Tribe received $500,000 from the same grant in 2023. In other action, Tribal Council:

- Approved a $120,000 application for a Bureau of Indian Affairs Endangered Species Program grant to assess western pond turtle presence on Tribal lands;
- Approved paying annual Indian Gaming Association membership dues of $25,000 and appointing Tribal Council member Denise Harvey as the Tribe’s delegate and all other council members as alternates;
- And approved enrolling one infant into the Tribe and approved a non-infant emergency enrollment because they meet the requirements outlined in the Tribal Constitution and Enrollment Ordinance.

Grand Ronde transit gap a ‘top priority’

By Sherron Lumley
Smoke Signals staff writer

Salem Cherriots and the Tillamook County Transportation District may end up joining forces to provide bus service to the Grand Ronde community after a crucial route was discontinued last month.

According to Tribal Public Works Coordinator John Mercier, the number of routes is yet to be determined.

“Grand Ronde’s current gap in bus service is not due to lack of funds. Like many businesses, especially in rural areas, local transit agencies are struggling to cover routes. This has led transit managers to consider collaborative solutions.”

“We can start immediately,” Mercier said. “It could be any day.”

He is ready to negotiate a contract, which he anticipates will include Cherriots’ drivers and Tillamook’s buses.

Mercier said that Tilamook is “bus-rich” and Cherriots is “driver-rich.” Working together, increased bus service from Grand Ronde to Salem could be restored in the near future.

Another potential solution is if the Siletz Tribe partners with Grand Ronde to offer two routes, seven days per week. The 60X (Coastal Connector) is a bus route from Lincoln City to the Salem Amtrak station via Grand Ronde and the 70X runs from Grand Ronde to offer two routes, the Siletz Tribe partners with Grand Ronde to Salem could be restored in the near future.

Without the Siletz on board, Mercier said he will still be able to have the 70X bus, which would provide Grand Ronde with daily, round-trip service to Salem.

“The Tribe works with professional transportation planners to review and find a good match for the riders,” Mercier said. “It is a priority to get those routes in place.”

The Yamhill County bus from Grand Ronde to McMinnville will continue its route Monday through Friday, with eight round-trip journeys per day.

Tillamook ended its daily service from Lincoln City to Grand Ronde to Salem abruptly in December due to a shortage of drivers. The final bus of 2023 ran on Dec. 10 and Tillamook’s General Manager Brian Vitulli announced all service to Grand Ronde ended effective Dec. 11.

Mercier said all the transit companies serving Grand Ronde are months behind in sending invoices to the Tribe, which is ready to pay on receipt, adding that he hasn’t been billed in six months and can’t close the Tillamook contract until an final invoice is received.

The Tribe’s federal and state transportation funding is used to pay for the public transit service that serves Grand Ronde.

State funding includes a two-year grant of $97,396 from the Oregon Department of Transportation and an ODOT-administered $300,000 Federal Transit Administration grant for rural areas.

A Statewide Transportation Improvement Fund grant of $470,058 will go toward resolving the Tribe’s current public transit service gap, paying subcontractors with transit agencies.

In addition to state funding, three-year federal allocations include $365,000, money from the Federal Transit Administration and some funds from pandemic relief efforts for the years 2024-27.

‘Now I’m starting to help Native American artists’

he was 21.

He went on to co-found Chalice Row Records with recording artist Young Shanty (Jason Cannong), who debuted at the top of Billboard’s reggae album chart in 2007.

The duo initially focused on Jamaican Rastafari reggae, and later dancehall, a newer form of reggae with a faster beat. That decision took the label to Florida in 2015 to be closer to the artists and a large network of radio stations playing reggae music.

Working with well-known American and Jamaican artists, Sierra began touring extensively in the U.S. and traveling internationally in Europe, doing tours, tour management, music videos and everything that goes into making a career successful for an artist.

“Now I’m starting to help Native American artists,” Sierra said. “It took some time, but now I have the extra skills needed for Native artists and the knowledge to help them.”

Sierra first met reggae artist Must Chief in 2010, but wasn’t yet working with him.

Sierra chose The Haven, a loft-style communal art and healing space that can hold about 150 people, because it suits his artists and the spoken word element of the show.

The smaller stage and non-club venue without alcohol engages the community with the music and artists, and welcomes more people to attend.

“I stopped drinking before age 21,” Sierra said. “I realized that’s not the type of environment that’s best for our music. Chalice Row Records represents positivity with chalice meaning life, the opposite of death.”

Tickets are $10 if purchased in advance at https://lnkfi.re/zPwSU1 and $20 at the door.

The Haven is located at 818 SE Taylor St. Doors open at 8 p.m. The show is for those 18 years of age and older.
Community Health ‘continues to evolve’

By Danielle Harrison
Smoke Signals editor

When most people in Grand Ronde hear the words, “Community Health,” they might think about medical transport services for Elder Tribal members.

However, what the department offers is much more than that, Community Health Manager Ali-sha Parks Shell said.

“We’ve been around a long time, nearly 20 years, and just continue to evolve,” she said.

Community Health is designed to help educate Tribal members about their health and instill methods for creating healthy lifestyles. Many activities involve both Tribal youth and Tribal Elders.

Parks Shell took the helm of the department in March and began to revamp its offerings to include more community-oriented services in addition to medical transport and medication management.

“We changed our format completely,” she said. “I knew we needed to be more in the community and I wanted to look at being proactive rather than reactive.”

One of the ways Parks Shell is accomplishing that goal is to coordinate with the Health & Wellness Department to do in-home wellness checks and to offer opportunities for people to gather together at the Tribal campus.

“Some Tribal members might think they are the only ones with blood pressure issues or diabetes, but if you show them they are not alone and there is a community out there to help, it reduces social isolation,” Parks Shell said. “We also do drop-in visits and check in on Tribal Elders just to make sure they are OK, and help them with resource connection and care coordination.”

Current offerings from Community Health include medical appointment and non-medical transportation, wellness visits, medication management, care coordination and socialization; as well as caregiver support services, an Elder exercise program, wellness activities and free Life Alert service for all Tribal Elders.

Additionally, Community Health offers home safety visits, car seat education and installation, and hospital post-discharge follow-up calls. Service is offered to all Tribal members living in Polk, Yamhill, Marion, Tillamook, Washington and Multnomah counties. The emergency room follow-up calls are offered to all Tribal members across the country.

During November 2023, the most current month statistics are available, Community Health served 158 clients and provided 431 home visits with a staff of seven.

“We want to help people with navigating their health care and provide a home visit that meets the needs of clients,” Parks Shell said.

Tribal Elder Melvin Schultz, 64, of Dallas has been receiving Community Health home visits for the past eight months after a lacerated kidney landed him in the emergency room.

He said the greatest benefits are having all of his medications managed and becoming more aware of his own health, and the steps he can take to improve it.

“Worrying about my medications and when it would run out was really creating anxiety for me,” Schultz said.

“When I first started visiting, his blood sugar was out of control,” Morris said. “Now we have it under control. A lot of it is creating the right habits.... We work based on their needs. A lot of what we do is advocate for them.”

Schultz said he feels much better than he did a year ago and now has a dog to help ensure he gets out for regular walks.

“After Ben started helping me, I told my brother to get on his list, too,” Schultz said. “My blood sugar has landed me in the hospital before. I want the assistance and I think this is one of the best programs you can have. If you don’t have good health, you can’t do much of anything, that’s how important.”

New grants will expand services

Two 2023 grant awards will allow Community Health to expand its offerings. The first is a two-year, Indian Health Service dementia care grant. The Tribe has been awarded close to $200,000 so far.

“We’re going to be hiring a new employee to oversee this and will be offering Elder workshops, community events, cognitive impairment testing, caregiver support and other resources,” Parks Shell said.

The other grant is a two-year, Administration for Community Living Elder Justice Innovation Grant. The Tribe was awarded $185,000 thus far, which will be used to increase education regarding Tribal Elder abuse, neglect and exploitation.

“We are deploying a task force to respond and want to create a closed-loop system with Adult Protective Services,” Parks Shell said. “That way, we know what the outcome was of any Elder abuse or neglect reports.”

Tribe’s medication-assisted treatment facilities served 436 people

I really wanted to do was to become self-sufficient, so that we would be able to work on health and wellness and not be reliant on casino dollars or other dollars out there so we would be able to function no matter what,” Rowe said. “I’m happy to say in 2024, we are able meet that goal and not rely on any gaming revenue that can be used elsewhere by the Tribe. That’s something that is powerful and that has been a goal for me and a goal for Health and Wellness that we’ve accomplished. I can’t say enough about it and how happy I am and proud to be a part of that.”

Other highlights of the presenta tion include:

Adult Foster Care lodges: The clinic is planning to open the vacant Black Bear Lodge in 2024, which will provide adult foster care services to six Tribal members. Currently, there is a waiting list for one additional room and is designed to be more efficient and include additional services to meet clients where they are.

Great Circle Recovery clinics: The Tribe’s medication-assisted treatment facilities in Salem and Portland have served 436 people. The Salem clinic has added mental health services, and a peer recovery center with a food pantry, clothing closet, career training and housing search area. There is also a shower and laundry trailer for unhoused clients who are utilizing services at the clinic.

A new mobile unit, funded by a state grant, will begin serving clients in a few weeks and is designed to help to alleviate that. Additionally, the clinic will build programming for hospice and palliative care for residents there as well as the broader Tribal membership who need those services.

TERO Worker of the Month
December 2023

Name: Dane Herrin
Employer: Wildish
Position: Laborer

Dane Herrin joined the TERO program in November 2021. It wasn’t very long after that he was dispatched out to one of our bridge replacement projects. Once that project was finished he had gained enough experience to be referred out to Wildish, a well-known company in the heavy highway industry.

Dane is now working on the South Yamhill River Bridge project in McMinnville, where he has proven himself to be a great asset to the Wildish team.

Dane’s dependability, hard work and ability to learn new skills has earned him the December TERO Worker of the Month.

We asked Dane what he thinks about the TERO program and how it has helped him. Dane said that TERO kept him employed and he was able to support his family through some difficult years. “Thank you to everyone in the TERO department for giving Tribal members a chance to work in some very high-paying jobs,” he said.

(Editor’s note: It is estimated that there are approximately 149 billion videos on YouTube, and the number continues to grow. Grand Ronde Tribal member and Social Media/Digital Journalist Kamiah Koch sifts through those myriad videos twice a month to recommend a worthwhile Indigenous video to watch. Follow her bimonthly recommendations and enjoy!)

By Kamiah Koch

Social media/digital journalist

Until 2021, the city of Denver used to auction off buffalo from its mountain parks to maintain a healthy population. In 2021, they changed directions and began transferring the buffalo back to Indigenous lands.

The video shows a large silver animal trailer passing on the freeway with faded black letters painted along the side spelling “LAND BACK” in all capital letters. Inside the trailer are nearly a dozen buffalo leaving Genesee Park in Golden, Colo., and headed for the Wind River Indian Reservation in Wyoming.

It has been documented that the U.S. government intentionally over-hunted and slaughtered the buffalo from Native lands as part of the systematic extermination of Indigenous people.

“Prior to colonization, buffalo was our life’s commissary for many of our Tribes,” InterTribal Buffalo Council Board member Jason Baldes (Eastern Shoshone Tribe) said. “It was our food, our clothing, our shelter, but also central to our cultural and spiritual belief systems. It’s been missing for a long period of time. To be able to restore that means we can begin to heal.”

The buffalo are shown arriving to snowy Wyoming and being released to join the rest of their new herd. As the trailer doors open to release them onto the plateau, bundled-up Tribal members and children drum and sing. Baldes said the Shoshone Tribe was at first given 300 acres, but has now acquired a total of 2,000 acres through fundraising and purchasing property.

“The goal is to continually acquire these lands after the lands were illegitimately taken in the first place when our reservation was opened up for homesteading,” Baldes said.

According to Baldes, the InterTribal Buffalo Council now has 83 member Tribes across the country. That organization is 30 years old and has restored 25,000 buffalo to 65 herds in 20 states.

Edward Ronald “Ronnie” Haller
July 1, 1933 – Dec. 22, 2023

Tribal Elder Edward Ronald “Ronnie” Haller peacefully passed away at home in his sleep on Dec. 22, 2023, at the age of 90.

Ronnie, as he was known, was from the Haller-Menard family, descended from Chief Joseph Zanagetta.

He was born on July 1, 1933, to Adeline Alvina Haller (Menard) and Wilbur Daniel Haller. Ronnie came from a large immediate family and an even larger extended family. If his love for his family and friends could have kept him here, he would have lived forever.

You could not find a man more tender-hearted and generous than Ronnie. May the love of God and the peace of Jesus Christ bless and console us, and gently wipe every tear from our eyes.

He is survived by his granddaughter, LeAnn Haller; great-grandchildren, Tatum Burcham, Shaun Jones, Cody Jones, Alex Zuniga and Nicholas Zuniga; great-great-grandson Elijah Burcham; and sister, Carol Gleason.

Ronnie continued working into his retirement doing small jobs for friends and family. He loved to be outdoors, hunting and he had an outstanding love for creatures. Every day he would care for dogs, cats, birds and even chipmunks.

Funeral services were held Friday, Jan. 5, 2024, in the Tribal gym, followed by a graveside service at the Tribal Cemetery with a meal served at the Tribal Community Center. Family and friends were invited to share fond memories and stories.

Eugene Russell LaBonte
Oct. 3, 1824 – Dec. 29, 2023

Tribal Elder and former Tribal Council member Eugene Russell LaBonte passed away on Dec. 29, 2023, at the age of 95.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Tribal Community Center, 9015 Grand Ronde Road.

Jennifer Lee Hedgecock

Sunset Hills Funeral Home in Eugene is assisting the family.

Funeral service details were not available before press time.
Child Development Center construction begins

Now through Dec. 31, 2024, construction is occurring for the new Child Development Center. During this time, there will be construction traffic using the loop road around the old powwow grounds across the street from the Governance Center.

The road surrounding the old powwow grounds will have restricted access to allow the contractor adequate space to access the site, as well as store materials and equipment.

“Given the proximity of the construction site to the loop around the old powwow grounds, I am requesting all employees and community members do not use that road during construction,” Tribal Engineering and Planning Manager Ryan Webb said in an email.

For more information, contact Webb at 503-879-2404 or Ryan.Webb@grandronde.org.

Making New Year’s resolutions stick
Our journey to make positive changes is just that — a journey. Whenever you decide to make a positive change, think about how to make the change permanent. Try the following tips to help you create long-lasting change:
1. Dream big. Then make a plan, breaking the main goal down into smaller and more quickly attainable goals. You’ll be able to see progress toward your big goal as you see smaller goals completed. Make the mini goals specific and measurable.
2. Commit yourself. Tell others about your resolution. Are there people among your friends and family that want to make similar changes? Create a check-in group with them for encouragement and accountability. Find an online support group.
3. Reward yourself for incremental successes. Acknowledging small successes can keep you motivated to keep going for the big successes. Encourage yourself to keep at it by pausing to acknowledge success as you tick off small and big accomplishments.
4. We are always learning from the past. Any time you fail to make a change, consider it a step toward your goal. Why? When you hit a snag, take a moment to think about what did and didn’t work. Maybe you took on too big of a challenge?
5. Give thanks and be grateful for what you do accomplish. Forget perfection. Even when you do less than you’d like, you have still taken some steps to make a change. Any activity is always better than none. Maybe tomorrow will be better.

January is National Blood Donor Month
Safe blood and blood products are key in treating people suffering from a range of diseases and as a result of accidents and natural disasters. The need for blood is universal and ongoing. Becoming a regular, voluntary blood donor is a simple but selfless step that everyone can take to strengthen their communities, support local health systems and save lives.

Here are some guidelines for donating whole blood:
• You can donate every 56 days, up to six times a year.
• You must be in good health and feeling well on the day you donate.
• In Oregon, you must be at least 16 years old.
• There is no upper age limit for donors as long as you meet the other requirements.
• You must weigh at least 110 pounds.
• You may not be able to donate if you are feeling ill on the day of scheduled donation, take certain medications, have traveled to malaria-prone areas in the last three years or have low iron. At each scheduled donation, take certain medications, have traveled to malaria-prone areas in the last three years or have low iron. At each donation you will be screened to be sure you can give safely.

The Tribe hosts Red Cross blood drives several times during the year. If you are already a donor, thank you! If you are new to donating, look out for upcoming opportunities to contribute. Every drop counts.

Reading nutritional labels
Choosing healthier foods and beverages can help reduce the risk of developing some health conditions such as high blood pressure, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, osteoporosis and anemia. In our society we eat a lot of foods that contain excessive saturated fat, sodium and added sugars. These all contribute to developing harmful health conditions. Learning how to read the nutritional labels can help support your personal dietary needs. Read the labels and choose foods that contain more of the nutrients you want to get and less of nutrients you may want to limit.

Begin by looking at the number of servings in the package (servings per container) and the serving size. All the nutrient amounts shown on the label, including the number of calories, refer to the size of the serving.

This label at left is from Lay’s Potato Chips. Note how many servings there are in the package. Then ask yourself: how much are you likely to consume. Will you likely eat one serving, two servings or more? Many items, especially chips and other snacks, are so alluring we tend to eat two or three or more servings at once. If you started eating these chips and got carried away, you might end up eating half the bag. That would be about 640 calories, 28 percent of your recommended daily sodium and 28 percent of your recommended saturated fat.

Let’s look at another label. The GoGo Squeez YogurtZ is packaged in one-serving containers. Therefore, the numbers listed are what you get in the whole package and probably what you will eat at once. We think of yogurt as a very healthy snack and it is. But look at the amount of added sugar hiding in the yogurt. Added sugars are listed in the nutrition facts because consuming too many added sugars can make it hard to meet nutrient needs while staying within calorie limits. Total sugars include naturally present sugars such as sugar in milk and fruit, plus any sugar added.

Massage at Health & Wellness
Hi, my name is Shawna Ray. I have been a licensed massage therapist in the Yamhill and Polk county area for eight years. I will be at the Health & Wellness Center on Mondays providing massage therapy as an on-site contractor and I am contracted with Shasta.
Contact 971-241-4323 by text or voice message to schedule appointments. Co-pay still may apply. I’m looking forward to working with those in the community to deliver a holistic approach to pain management, relaxation and overall wellness.
